FORTY-THIRD YEAR. LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1925. TWO CENTS

O.K. SHOALS BILL

UNDERWOOD IS GIVEN VOTES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The senate today voted forty-eight to thirty-seven to substitute the Underwood bill auhorizing he president to lease the great $150,000,000 government power project at Muscle Shoals for the Norris bill providing for outright government operation. The Underwood bill must be voted on again in the senate before it is finally passed. The vote today amounted in reality only to putting the senate on record against the government operation proposed by the Norris bill.

Administration leaders plan at the next parliamentary stage to make another substitution, replacing the Underwood bill with the Jones plan for a survey by an expert commission.

At 4 p. m. the time set for voting, Senator Ladd introduced an amendment which would take jurisdiction of any lease out of hands of the Secretary of War and make the president solely responsible. It was adopted without a record vote.

In event the senate finally approves the Underwood measure it then would go to conference with the house which in the last session passed the Ford offer and the final solution of the Muscle Shoals problem must await the agreement reached by the senate and house conferees.

The Underwood bill authorizes the president to lease the project to private interests for a period of 50 years with the requirement that ferilizer be produced for sale to farmers. Mr. Coolidge favored the Underwood bill but has also let it be known he would not object to the Jones plan.

In the event, however, of a lease not being negotiated before September 1, the government would be authorized to operate the project on its own account.

CHARGES MOVE AGAINST BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — A charge that a "sickening and sordid" movement has been organized to defeat ratification of the child labor amendment by the state legislatures was made in the senate today by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, chief investigator in the Teapot Dome inquiry.

Walsh said that in this movement, which is well organized and "liberally financed," are some lobbyists who have been previously discredited. He resurrected an investigation by the senate into activities of "the insidious lobby" of 1923 and charged that the National Association of Manufacturers and its counsel James Emery, at present agitating against the child labor amendment, then received "uneviable prominence."

"It was then established by correspondence that the unspeakable Mr. Mulhall had operated for a number of years about Washington as the paid lobbyist for that organization under the direction of Emery," Walsh said.

"The activities of the pair took a wide range but centered in an effort to defeat all legislation in which organised labor was interested."

BOOM H. G. TAYLOR FOR I. C. C. PLACE

Chamber of Commerce and Governor Take Lead, Dawes Promises Favorable Opinion If Asked.

H. G. Taylor is being boomed for the position on the interstate commerce commission left vacant January 3 by the resignation of Commissioner Potter. The chamber of commerce has written and Governor McMullen has telegraphed President Coolidge in Mr. Taylor's behalf, and General Dawes has promised his favorable opinion if he is consulted, tho he does not take the initiative in such matters. The governor-elect says of Mr. Taylor in his telegram:

"Mr. Taylor is thoroly qualified, having been a member of the Nebraska commission since 1912 and re-elected last November for an additional term of six years. He has been active in all matters of regulation, and has served on numerous state commission committees in cases before the interstate commerce commission and as president of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioner, and is now chairman of the central western regional advisory board, a shippers' organization. His knowledge of interstate commerce matters and procedure, together with his unquestioned ability and his having been a life long republican, and the fact that Nebraska has never had a representative on the commission, prompt me to present Mr. Taylor's name for your consideration."

President J. Case Cornell of the chamber of commerce outlines Mr. Taylor's life and public service in his letter to the president, including his career as a newspaper publisher at Almena, Kas., and Central City, Neb. and his presidency of the state press association. He points out that in the past two years Mr. Taylor was chairman of a conference committee of five commissioners which sat with the interstate commission in the consideration of express rates all over the country. In 1921 he was one of a committee of five representing state commissions, who met with the interstate body to formulate a plan of cooperation between the regulatory bodies of the two jurisdictions. During his term as president of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners in 1924, he conducted a national conference at Chicago of all agencies interested in the furher protection of railroad grade crossings.

SCORE INJURED IN EXPLOSION

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8.—More than a score of persons were injured and the lives of hundreds were imperiled in an explosion of natural gas at a Booster station today.

Fumes made rescue work difficult and several men were pinned down by debris.

The explosion occured when an acetylene torch ignited gas fumes in a booster tank which was being repaired.

Police reserves and ambulances carried away those who were injured. Physicians said none of the injuries would cause death, but that several persons were cut severely by flying glass. Officials said it was a miracle that several persons were not killed.

Loss was estimated at $5,000.

AGREEMENT IS IN SIGHT

Washington Officials Believe U. S. May Receive Payment From German Reparations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — An agreement between Great Britain and the United States under which thel atter will receive payments of war claims out of the reparations fund, is in sight, officials said today after reading Ambassador Herrick's cabled report of yesterday's session of the Paris financial conference.

In view of recent confusion in the French debt negotiations the state department accepted the "private" agreement between Colonel Logan, American delegate and Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer, as hopeful but not final.

Churchill has agreed to the compromise offered by the United States more than a month ago and reaffirmed in the Washington note to oLndon last Monday, it is understood.

Under the compromise the United States permits extension of its $225,000,000 claim for army of occupation costs over twenty-five annual payments, instead of twelve annual payments as provided in the Wadsworth agreement.

In return this country's other war claims, expected to be fixed by the American-German mixed claims commission at about $250,000,000 will be paid out of the non-preferential Dawes annuities.

This compromise will be reached, it is believed here, by Great Britain agreeing with the other allies that the United States has a normal right tos hare in reparations, altho she sacrificed all legal right by refusing to become a party to the Versailles treaty.

Altho the American delegation will present their case at today's session of the Paris conference on the basis of the legal right of this country, there is no intention of rejecting settlement because the allies recognize only our right in equity.

CONTEST BROOKHART VOTE

Robinson Files Suit in Senate on Behalf of Daniel Steck, Senators Opponent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A contest against the election of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, republicon, Iowa, was filed in the senate today by Senator Robinson, democratic leader, on behalf of Daniel F. Steck, Ottumwa, Brookhart's democratic opponent. Brookhart was declared elected by a plurality of less than 70 0votes.

Steck's petition charges that irregularities in counting the vote existed in every county in the state and that several thousand more votes were cast for him thar for Brookhart. Votes counted for Brookhart in error and votes cast for Steck that were ruled out would have given the election to Steck by a majority of not less than 5,000, the petition states.

Some of the illegalities complained of were enumerated as follows:

Local boards counted for Brookhort ballots cast for Steck. That a number of ballots cast for Steck were not counted. That ballots bearing unlawful and distinguishing marks were illegally counted for Brookhart, whereas similar ballots for Steck were rejected. That in various election precincts votes were returned as cast for Brookhart when in fact no such votes were cast. That there was illegal voting by persons not entitled to vote. That ballots were removed illegally from the polling places prior to being counted, thereby affording opportunity for fraudulent manipulation. That irregularities and miscounting of ballots occurred in every county in the state.

DROP INQUIRY INTO SHOOTING

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 8.—Investigation of the shooting which resulted in the death of Francis X. Bernard, corsican chemist and the serious wounding of Miss Lora Palmer, University of Wisconsin French instructor, was dropped today by District Attorney Philip F. LaFollette. No inquest over Bernard's body will be held.

LaFollette said he was satisfied that authorities had nothing more to do in the case, in which Bernard committed suicide after shooting Miss Palmer.

The pretty instructor's rejection of the Corsican's suit led to the tragedy, the district attorney declared.

A dozen letters, some of which were written by Miss Palmer to Bernard, are in the possession of the district attorney. They were found on Bernard's body.

Other than to admit that the letters revealed that Mrs. Palmer was opposed to her marrying Bernard, District Attorney LaFollette refused to give out their contents. He indicated however, that the letters showed plainly tha the tragedy was the culmination of the corsican's ardent courtship.

SWIFT EARNINGS GREATER

Company Made Almost Million Dollars More in 1924 Than in 1923.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Net earnings of Swift and company, packers for 1924, exceeded the 1923 earnings by nearly $1,000,000, according to the fourth annual report made public today.

Earnings for 1924 totalled $14,125,987 compared with $13,185,000 for 1923.

Sales in 1924 totalled $775,000,000 compared with $750,000,000 for 1923.

During the fiscal year ended November 1, 1924, the company paid out $357,000,000 for livestock and slaughtered 17,509,946 animals, Louis F. Swift, president stated.

"The coming year promises to be a good one in the packing industry," he said. "Indications are the country will enjoy general prosperity, in which case there will undoubtedly be a good demand for meat and all our other products."

WARSHIP BOILERS POOR

Wilbur Says Fall Below 5-5-3 Ratio Due to Condition of Boilers in Four Craft.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The fall of the navy below the 5-5-3 treaty ratio, Secretary Wilbur said today, was due to the condition of boilers in four battleships. This condition, he said, was resultant from their long use. With these boilers fixed and oil burning equipment installed, the 5-5-3 ratio will be restored.

Wilbur explained that under the naval treaty, Great Britain was allowed an excess tonnage because she was to replace four old ships with two new ones. When this change is effected, he said, England will have only a slight excess tonnage.

NOT TO CALL COMMISSION

Mellon Does Not Contemplate Calling of the Debt Funding Group.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon does not contemplate calling a meeting of the world war debt funding commission to consider the memorandum of French Finance Minister Clementel concerning the $4,000,000,000 French debt to the United States, it was said today at the treasury.

"No progress" has been made toward settlement of the debt problem since receipt of the note by Secretary Mellon, which he considers a private unofficial continuation of the two conversations he held with French Ambassador Jusserand in December, it was said.

A reply may be made, probably to the state department, but no official action will be taken until France makes a definite proposal which the present memorandum is said not to contain.

BINGHAM IS REELECTED

Louisville Man Again Chairman of Executive Committee of Co-operative Council.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — The council cooperative association here today re-elected Judge R. W. Bingham, Louisville, Ky., chairman of its executive committee. L. L. Lawler, San Francisco, was elected to the committee in place of J. H. Barber, San Francisco, resigned. All other members of the committee were re-elected. It was voted to move the national headquarters of the organization from Chicago to Washington.

Resolutions were adopted commending the president for his support of the cooperative movement and asking the federal trade commission to investigate the "unfair trade practices, boycotts and other methods used by the American Tobacco company and the Imperial Tobacco company of Great Britain in fighting cooperatively-produced tobacco production."

"The principal economic difficulty of farmers at this time continues to be the lack of an efficient system of marketing their products," another resolution said, adding that the remedy is a system of cooperative commodity marketting.

The meeting went on record against any federal farm aid legislation by congress at this time.

J. A. Carne, former manager of a store at Chattanooga, Tenn., confessed to the city judge before whom he was arraigned that he stole from the store on June 8, 1923, $867 and that he had come all the way from Skagway, Alaska, to surrender and confess his crime.

Rumors That Designs Made to Deprive Middleweight Champ of His Crown in Detroit Fight.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 8.—Ugly rumors of an alleged conspiracy designed to rob Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, of his crown in a ten round decision bout here tomorrow night with Bob Sage caused the champion to demand that E. W. Dickerson, prominent Grand Rapids promoter, be named the third man in the ring.

Greb expressed dissatisfaction with having two local men as judges and a local referee also in the ring. A conference wit hboxing Commisisoner Plies late this afternoon is expected to clea rthe objections.

ARRESTED SECOND TIME

C. A. Witte Charged Tuesday Morning With Selling Liquor, Nabbed Again Same Day.

DEWITT, Neb., Jan. 8.—C. A. Witte is held at the county jail here, pending preliminary trial on charges of gambling and selling intoxicating liquor as a result of second raid on his drug store conducted Tuesday night by Sheriff Henry Greer and a deputy. The first raid had been conducted Tuesday morning when several gallons of alcohol were found in the store and a number of bottles of alleged intoxicating liquor was discovered in back rooms. After the first raid Witte was allowed his freedom on personal recognizance.

In the second raid conducted Tuesday night it is alleged that the officers found C. A. Witte in the act of selling booze to a group of gamblers in the basement. Another supply of intoxicating liquor was also found by the officers, it is alleged. County Attorney Metoka of Crete accompanied the sheriff on the raid.

His drug store was ordered closed but an order was issued Wednesday permitting Mrs. Witte to operate the store. C. F. Waldo, one of the officers, sustained a broken leg when he slipped on the ice during the course of the raid.

A number of slot machines have been closed in the town and a storm against law-breakers has been in progress here.

NOTRE DAME TEAM IS HERE

The Notre Dame squad arrived in Lincoln Thursday afternoon at 2:35 p. m., an hour late, on the Burlington from Denver, and are guests of the Huskers at a banquet at the Country club tonight. They went immediately to the Lincoln hotel. Crowley, the great halfback, was not with the squad, being confined ina hospital in California. Harry Stuhldreher, famous quarter back, was on crutches. He suffered a fracture of his left ankle in the Stanford contest. Elmer Layden, full back, who numbers among the All-Americans on the Notre Dame team, along with Crowley and Stuhldreher, was in fine fettle. Don Miller did not stop in Lincoln but went on to Omaha.

Layden does not like this talk about Notre Dame getting the breaks in the California game. He said that Stanford got some of the breaks, too. He feels that Notre Dame won the game because they played the best football and does not want the team to be deprived of any of the credit. Stuhldreher said that the California game was not the hardest the Notre Dame eleven had by any means. The game with the Army, he declared, was the hardest scrap of the year.

He paid a tribute to the Nebraska team and said they were good football men but said that the Indiana team was lying for Nebraska. They wanted to pay them back for two defeats at the hands of the Huskers. The squad with the exception of Stuhldreher and Crowley are in fine shape, Stuhldreher said.

They were met at the train by Coach Dawson, Coach Schulte, Weller, Herbert Gish, and some other Nebraska men and a number of admiring friends and they had callers at the hotel who wanted to meet the famous kridmen. Most of them expressed a desire to rest rather than going on a sight-seeing trip. They will leave tonight at 9:30 o'clock. Coach Rockne did not come with the squad. He and Mrs. Rockne are in California.

BRYAN ON SCANDAL IN ROAD CONTRACTS

Tells Legislature of Finding Falsifications of Records.

CONTRACTORS ARE OVERPAID

Federal Government Helped in the Investigation.

TELLS OF MILLIONS SAVED

Worth Twenty-two Millions a Year to Have the Retiring Executive at Head of State's Affairs.

The full text of Governor Bryan's message will be found on page ten.

Strong hints of a gigantic scandal in connection with the building of roads during the previous state administration are contained in the message of retiring Governor Bryan this afternoon to the joint session of the state legislature. The governor says that an investigation has disclosed that records of the public works department were falsified to show a large increase in the yardage of dirt the state paid for moving than was actually moved.

The governor says that he has been investigating the matter with representatives of the federal government, and that the latter has made a demand for the excess money it has been required to pay because contractors' pay was thus enriched. Other falsifications, he says, were found by the federal department before payment was made. He says that by changes made in classifications contractors were enriched $100,000 more.

The governor says all the facts are in the hands of the attorney general, with the recommendation that he punish the guilty and bring suit to recover the money wrongfully obtained. He also asks for an appropriation to repay the federal government.

The message is replete with figures showing the amount the governor says he saved. He puts the savings in taxes at $6,160,000 for two years; on coal at $10,000,000 and gasoline at $9,000,000. He recommends that the legislature authorize the state officials to buy and sell gasoline and fuel as a measure that he says would prevent excessive prices being charged.

The governor complains that he could have cut expenses a lot more if the last legislature had cooperated with him and had allowed the code law to be wiped off the statutes. He says that he went ahead anyway and reorganized these departments, cutting out all duplications possible and greatly reducing the number of state employes.

Neither on the gasoline tax nor the child labor amendment does the governor take a distinct position. He says the people want no increase in tax burdens and that a gasoline tax must also be coupled with a cut in other taxes of equal size. He says that if the child labor amendment means to protect children from being worked in factories and mills it will serve a worthy purpose, but that if it is to take children away from the control of their parents until they are eighteen, so that they could not get the benefit of work outdoors on a farm at light farm work it would be unfair to children, inhuman to parents and destroy home life. He suggests a referendum vote of the people on this proposition.

Recommendations of Retiring Governor.

Abolition of the departments of finance, agriculture and public welfare. The transfer of the former to the auditor's office; creation of an inspection department which shall also include fire prevention; transfer of seed analysis department to agricultural college, which shall also make all gluten tests for wheat; transfer to state superintendent of child welfare and hygiene work and to extension department of university enforcement of Sheppard Towner maternity act, abolition of fire investigation department, transfer of athletic and game and fish department to special bureau, abolition of the blue sky department.

Creation of separate bureaus for banking and insurance, with governor at head of each and a capable person at their heads.

Abolition of the legislative reference bureau and state library commission on ground of duplication of work done by other departments of government.

Centralization of work of training teachers for schools of state, now being done by university, normals and high schools.

Repeal of the intangible tax law.

Law retaining in state ownership and control of water power to be developed as district units.

Appropriation of $474,000 to provide for deficits in road and bridge departments.

If tax on gasoline be levied same consumer should receive equal amount of reduction on other taxes he is now paying.

Suggests referendum on child labor amendment.

Examination of all spending agencies receiving state aid and against any special mill levies for a building fund for such agencies.

Creation of state board of mediation and conciliation.

Appropriation to pay workmen's compensation to state employes.

Constitutional amendment making attorney general an appointee of the governor.

Creation of state supreme court commission for two years to relieve congestion in high court.

Law permitting judges to comment on evidence in cases tried before them and to give them power to fix minimum as well as maximum sentences for convicted persons.

Appropriation of $2,600,000 to finish state capitol and fix up grounds.

MORE SPEED THAN USUAL

STANDING COMMITTEES READY FOR THE HOP-OFF.

Building Progress in House Two Years Ago Covered Four Days While Less Than Half Time This Year.

Chairman Gilmore of the house committee on committees has driven his organization at such high speed that the task of building the standing committees was completed, all but the checking over, by Thursday noon. The time consumed was approximately one day. Two years ago, the building process covered four days.

Republicans may point to this achievement as proof that it is better for the whip party, particularly when it is republican, to place minority members. Two years ago, the democrats dealt their own cards. The placing this year is done entirely by the all-republican parent committee.

The fate of two bills which the governor's private secretary left with Speaker Burke for introduction in the house, was not known Thursday. These are the governor's bills in support of his budget. They were said to be in the hands of the attorney general. Two yeasr ago, senators referred to the house as a body made up of 101 members, Governor Bryan being included in the membership. This inclusion was credited to the fact that he introduced bills in his own name and got away with it.

The bills presented Wednesday, however, were unsigned and to date, according to rumor, no democratic member has stepped forward to sign them. They are not introduced at this time altho, it is said, the governor is determined to get them into circulation.

The house chamber was dressed up a bit for Thursday's joint session. A string of carpet, new but inexpensive, was stretched upon the floor to cover bald spots extending from the water tank over to that section occupied by members of the Douglas delegation.

PROBE BEHIND DOORS

Investigation of Couzens Senate Committee on Dry Unit Is Secret.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Investigation of the prohibition unit by the Couzens senate committee opened behind closed doors today, the committee deciding that "publicity is not compatible with the best interests of the government."

Later hearings may be made public, Senator Couzens, chairman, said in announcing the decision.

Closed sessions were agreed on following the statement of Senator James. Watson, Indiana republican, who declared that he was "opposed to any publicity in regard to the investigation."

SPARK STARTS ROOF FIRE

Hole Burned Thru Ceiling at 1029 R Street, But Damage Slight.

Fire thought to have originated from a chimney spark burned thru the roof of Charles Weidman's three-room apartment house at 1029 R street, Thursday morning, damaging the building to the extent of about $75. Firemen used eighty gallons of chemical in extinguishing the blaze.

Under the hole burned about six feet square in the roof [illegible] was burned thru but little interior damage was done. Most of the furniture was removed in time from the room beneath.

NAMED IN SUIT

Cyrus McCormick, millionaire head of the International Harvester company, has been sued by Edwin W. Jacobs of New York City for $500,000. Jacobs charges McCormick with alienating the affections of his wife who is said to be thirty-five years old. It is alleged that the Chicago millionaire, who is sixty-five years old, showered presents and money upon Mrs. Jacobs and so completely turned her head that she does not care for the plaintiff any more.

BUSINESS MEN OPEN ROADS

Turn Out in Body to Help Farmers Get Highway Open.

LOUP CITY, Neb., Jan. 8.—The business men of Loup City, assisted by the community club, have been doing a flourishing business the last few days with scoop shovels due to the heavy snows here in the last month.

Somebody struck upon the idea of getting all the business men out with their trucks and extra men to shovel snow and clear the roads. The work was started Monday morning when several large trucks and a number of men armed with scoop shovels turned out, and up to this time practically all the main roads leading into Loup City have been cleared.

BILLS ARE REJECTED

BRYAN'S BUDGET MEASURES TURNED BACK TO HIM.

Speaker Burke Rules That Governor Can't Introduce Them in Joint Session or at the Present Time.

The two bills submitted to the joint session of the legislature by Governor Bryan, thru his private secretary, Mr. Radke, Wednesday afternoon were neatly wrapped and returned to him Thursday afternoon. This followed a ruling by Speaker Burke that the only power conferred on the governor in the matter of introduction of bills is when these are of an emergency character and then only after the twenty days' limit for the introduction of bills by members has expired. It was also impossible for a joint session to receive any bills from anybody.

The speake rannounced this opinion after he had conferred with the attorney general's office and several members with a reputation as constitutional lawyers.

Mr. Burke added that there is nothing to prevent any democrat from introducing these bills any time when that order of business is reached in the house. These are appropriation measures, and can be introduced only in the house. They represent what the governor suggested as proper appropriations for the various departments. The republicans have shown no disposition to pay any attention to them.

NO FALSE ECONOMY FOR NEW GOVERNOR

For Lower Taxes But Not At Expense of Institutions.

GIVES LEGISLATURE VIEWS

Stands for Well-Considered Road Building Program.

GASOLINE TAX IS FAVORED

But Insists That It Would Be Accompanied by a Reduction in the License Fee for Motor Vehicles.

The house of representatives, where the inauguration ceremonies took place, was packed, the gallery and lobby filled to suffocation and the floor of the house almost as badly choked. Mrs. McMullen and party occupied front row seats, and near them was Mrs. C. W. Bryan and the two sisters of the governor, Mrs. T. S. Allen and Mrs. James Baird. Many prominent persons were present, among the number State Chairman H. E. Sackett and National Committeewoman Mrs. E. B. Penney. The guests of honor were looked after by a detail of military officers in uniform, headed by General Paul.

In his message to the legislature delivered at the joint session Thursday afternoon Governor McMullen asked for a close cooperation for the common good. He asked that all of the republican party platform pledges with respect to specific legislation be redeemed.

While the future of agriculture depends upon the energy, thrift and skill of the farmer himself, the legislature owes it to him to remove all legal obstacles to the organization of sound enterprise. Bovine tuberculosis is a menace to human health, and statewide action to eradicate it is recommended.

Pointing out that much needed road work had been neglected or postponed with resulting large losses, he urged the adoption of a policy of extension and improvement of roads, paid for out of current funds, so built as to bring the products of farm and factory nearer to the consumer.

Opposing any increase in taxation, the governor recommends the adoption of the gasoline tax, concurrently with a reduction in the license fee for motor vehicles.

A proper system of traffic regulation and provisions for summary punishment of offenders to decrease the death toll on the highways is urged.

The governor asks the legislature to amend the civil and criminal codes so as to increase the certainty of punishment and thus lessen the number of crimes of violence. He promised strict enforcement of the prohibitory laws.

Legislation to safeguard irrigation waters is recommended. He asks also for legislation to facilitate or improve the administration of the workmen's compensation law.

Where it is possible taxes should be lowered, but a wise discrimination in economy should be maintained. Prudent expenditure is often the truest thrift, and the state institutions ought not to suffer thru a misapplication of so-called economy.

An amendment to the intangible tax law either of classification or tax or both is recommended.

Crowding of students and lack of sufficient facilities at the state educational institutions calls, he says, for careful study and action that would prevent lowering of educational standards by parsimonious appropriations.

The governor recommends that the present capitol levy be continued for three years to complete the structure.

MAN WHO KILLED REINMILLER ASKS HABEAS CORPUS.

Stanley Bartos Presents Petition for Client's Release From Asylum to District Judge Broady Thursday.

Edward Schuerman of DeWitt who shot and killed George Reinmiller October 10, and who was found not guilty of murder by a Gage county jury December 24, for the reason that on the date of the killing he was insane, filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the district court Thursday, shortly before noon.

The action was brought in the name of the state on the relation of Edward Schuerman against D. G. Griffiths superintendent of the asylum for the insane and against the state board of control.

In the petition it is stated that Mr. Schuerman was informed against in Gage county November 21, charged with the murder of George Reinmiller of DeWitt on October 10. On December 24, the jury before whom he was tried returned a verdict of innocence for the reason that on the date of the killing Schuerman was insane.

Pursuant to this verdict Schuerman was brought to Lincoln and confined in the hospital for the insane on January 5. In the petition the claim is made that he was insane on the date of the killing but that he has since recovered his reason and is a sane, normal man entitled to his liberty.

KIDNAPED ON GOLD COAST

Five Wealthy Residents of Chicago Abducted and Robbed During Night.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Five wealthy residents of Chicago's gold coast were kidnaped and robbed during the night by a band of robbers patrolling the exclusive residential district in a stolen automobile.

E. F. Mansure, a furniture dealer, was the only one to report to police. He said he was held captive for more than an hour in the bandit car and was robbed of $55. Four other victims were with him, he said, but he did not know the extent of their losses.

Early today police arrested three men in a machine like the one Mansure described. Each of the men carried revolvers.

PLAN VOTE UPON SHOALS

SENATE IN COMPLICATED PARLIAMENTARY SITUATION.

Republican Leaders Expect to Pass Underwood Bill in Preference to Norris Government Operation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—After working itself into one of the most complicated parliamentary situations in years, the senate at 4 p. m. today will vote on the Underwood plan for disposing of the Muscle Shoals power project.

Republican leaders expect to pass the Underwood bill in preference to the Norris government operation bill, but they have no intention of stopping there. If the bill passes they intend to put it up to a vote again in competition with the Jones plan for referring the whole question of disposing of the project to a government commission and kill the Underwood bill. This vote will come at some future date.

The goal of the administration group is the enactment of the Jones plan, but first they must kill off the Norris bill by passing the Underwood measure today and then kill off the Underwood bill for the Jones bill.

MEEKER NAMED SECRETARY

COCHRAN STATE ENGINEER

Griggs of Adams, McLaughlin of Doniphan, Kennedy of Omaha, and Condit of Fremont Among Favored.

Governor McMullen's appointments:

Secretary Finance—Dwight S. Dalbey, Beatrice.

Secretary Trade and Commerce—Kirk Griggs, Hastings.

Secretary Agriculture—H. J. McLaughlin Doniphan.

Secretary Public Works—Roy L. Cochran, North Platte.

Secretary Labor—Frank A. Kennedy, Omaha.

Secretary Welfare — Lincoln Frost, Lincoln.

Chief Game Warden—J. C. Jenkins, Neligh.

Fire Warden—John C. Trouton, Omaha.

Chief Bureau of Securities—Jess V. Craig, Lincoln.

State Tax Commissioner—T. E. Williams, Aurora.

Governor's Secretary—David F. Meeker, Imperial.

Governor-elect McMullen shook the plum tree Thursday forenoon a few hours before he was to take the oath of office and become the fully qualified governor of Nebraska. He expects his appointees to take their positions immediately, or as soon as they can file bonds and take the necessary oath.

The governor received a delegation of Lincoln citizens early in the day, but no information in regard to their mission was given out. His list of appointees had been made up when the delegation called.

In regard to salaries the governor expects his appointees to draw the amounts specified in the law, providing appropriations are made by the legislature.

The law provides that the secretaries of code departments shall receive $5,000 a year, but the last legislature made no appropriation for such appointees' pay. They are now drawing available funds in lesser amounts ranging from $3,000 to $4,000 a year.

The new appointees at the head of code departments must be submitted to the legislature in joint convention for confirmation. The state tax commissioner, whose salary is $5,000 a year, is to be confirmed by the state senate alone. An appropriation is available for the full salary for tax commissioner. W. H. Smith now holds the office.

The governor has retained William Wood, custodian of the governor's mansion and caretaker of the governor's office under the present and many past governors.

Many Not Applicants.

"I have tried sincerely," said Governor-Elect McMullen, "to pick men whom I thought would fill the places with ability, men who have had experience in the work they are called upon to perform. I had many able men to select from. Personalities were eliminated and selections have been made on merit. Some were selected who were not applicants and I know personally some have agreed to take the work at a financial sacrifice, saying they will feel repaid if they can be of service to the state.

"I am sorry I did not have enough offices to go around. I hope my friends will bear with me, for I have had a difficult task to perform. I have done my best."

The governor said the law requires him to appoint secretaries of code departments and the law fixes their salaries at $5,000 a year, but this all depends upon appropriations by the legislature. The governor fixes all salaries below the offices of secretaries of code departments and he depends upon the legislature to make appropriations.

"I am taking things as they are," said the new governor, "and expects code department heads to take charge of their departments and in the meantime I will feel my way along. As soon as the appointees give bond and qualify as required by law they are expected to take charge."

David F. Meeker of Imperial, private secretary to Governor McMullen, has been an assistant in the law office of his father for several years. He is thirty-four years of age and unmarried.

Millionaire Accepts Post.

Dwight S. Dalby of Beatrice, appointed secretary of finance, a code department, is to succeed George E. Hall of Franklin. Mr. Dalbey was speaker of the house of representatives in 1919. He is rated as a multi-millionaire but has consented to take this appointment in the hope he can be of service to the state.

Kirk Griggs, of Hastings, is to take the place of K. C. Knudson, secretary of the department of trade and commerce, which has charge of the banking bureau. He is also chairman of the newly created bank guaranty commission. Mr. Griggs is cashier of the First National bank of Hastings and has been a breeder of pure bred livestock and a farmer.

H. J. McLaughlin of Doniphan, is a farmer and former member of the legislature who will succeed

SAVES LIFE OF SIMMONS

M'MULLEN PERFORMS FIRST ACT AS GOVERNOR.

Usual Monthly Reprieve Is Issued by Incoming Governor to Walter R. Simmons of Boyd County.

The first official act of Governor McMullen Thursday afternoon, immediately after he takes the oath of office, will be to issue the usual monthly reprieve to Walter Ray Simmons, Boyd county murderer under sentence of death.

Governor Bryan, while still governor, notified Warden Fenton not to be uneasy about the command in the former reprieve which requires the warden to electrocute Simmons at the expiration of the former document which expires at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, as it had been arranged with the incoming governor to issue another respite good until the next meeting of the pardon board or not to exceed thirty days. Simmons has an appeal pending in the supreme court at Washington.

David F. Meeker, private secretary to the governor, called at the executive offices and proceeded to check over the records of Private Secretary F. C. Radke whose term expires Thursday and who is to become county judge of Johnson county on that day.

Governor-elect McMullen called on Governor Bryan shortly before 2 o'clock and met Governor Bryan, who is to retire from office a few hours later in the day. The governor-elect for the first time saw the new quarters of the governor in the new capitol.

STUDENT SHOOTS HIMSELF

Dana Coolidge, Jr., of Minneapolis Tries Suicide Because Girl Jilted Him

OMAHA, Jan. 8.—The condition of Dana Coolidge, jr., twenty, Minneapolis, Minn., high school student, who shot himself twice thru the chest here last night because his sweetheart, Margaret Forest, daughter of a Minneapolis banker, jilted him, was pronounced grave by physicians at Lord Lister hospital today.

After quarreling with his sweetheart young Coolidge came to Omaha Wednesday morning. After spending the day with a friend here, he went to the river bank where he shot himself. He then walked a mile for help.

Coolidge told police that when he told his teacher, Ruth Wilson, that Margaret had jilted him, Miss Wilson jokingly told him the best thing for him to do was to commit suicide.

Physicians held out very little chance for Coolidge's recovery.

ADJOURNS UNTIL MONDAY

Both houses of the legislature voted Thursday afternoon to adjourn until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon following the inauguration. This is necessary in order to allow the committee on committees to select committees for each house. Until they are named the legislative wheels are blocked, since new bills must go first to them for consideration and action.

SAME SCALE AS JANITOR

NEAT LITTLE ROW OVER PAY TO STENOGRAPHERS.

Chairman Densmore of Committee on Emlpoyes Declares That Schedule Will Stand as House Accepted.

House stenographers are being paid the same wage as colored janitors. Some of them are satisfied. One, Miss Emma Welty, has tendered her resignation to Chief Clerk Corrick. Miss Welty is well versed in legislative affairs, having served in the Wyoming legislature.

The pay is $5 a day for six days of the week with no overtime. Two years ago, stenographers were raised to $6 a day. Representative Densmore, chairman of the house committee on employes, declared that he sees no reason for any backing up on the schedule adopted by the house. The two janitors, he says, will work longer than ever before. They must be on the job at 7 o'clock and shall not being the business of sweeping until 5 p. m. This program, he says, means that they will be on the job twelve hours a day.

The chairman holds that the committee cannot discriminate as between stenographers fresh on the job. There is no way of knowing right off, which members of the stenographic staff will prove most valuable. He also calls attention to the fact that down-town stenographers, if paid less than those employed by the legislature, are likely to try to club their employers into paying more with the result that the employer will think of the lower legislative branch as a most extravagant body.

There is, however, the other side of the question. On behalf of the stenographers, the point is made that those who do the heavy work and do it well, should be paid according to their ability.

Another matter being agitated in house circles Thursday was the stamp question. The house voted a daily allotment of twenty-five cents per member. Some contend that there are members who will not use a day's stamp ration during an entire session. They will get their stamps every morning but may not use them. The suggestion that instead of licking their own, members permit this to be done in the chief clerk's office is frowned upon because of the fact that many members write their letters at night in the quiet of their rooms and after the letters are written, it is the desire of the writer to post immediately.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ROMANS FLAT DWELLERS.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—In the midst of an acute housing shortage, Britain's army of flat-hunters got all excited over publication of the following ad: "To let for the space of five years from the 15th day of August next to the 15th day of the sixth August thereafter, the Venus bath, fitted up for the best people, shops, rooms over shops, and second-story apartments, in the property owned by Julia Felix, daughter of Spurius Julius." But it was only a flutter, Arthur J. Davis, one of London's leading architects, who made the advertisement public, explained that it was just 1900 years old. It was, he said, a copy of a painted inscription taken from the ruins of Pompeii.

ADVICE OF MEN NEEDED

FATHRS SHOULD JOIN IN THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Home Economics Association Is Told Both Parents Should Consider Child Problems.

The home economics association meetings continued to have record attendance Thursday. Miss Fannie R. Buchanan of Camden, N. J., gave the last of her educational talks on music in the home at the morning session, and talks on pictures boys and girls farm clubs and habit formation followed. Miss Binzel declared men should join the women in considering problems of home life. The entitre responsibility does not belong to the mother.

Miss Buchanan included in the list of songs suitable for the entertainment and enjoyment of children some of the cowboy songs, which have been recorded in permanent form by well known composers in recent years. One of these given on a talking machine had been used by cowboys to quiet the cattle when corralled at night and the rhythm was that of the jog of the cow-pony.

A demonstration, "The More 4-H Clubs, the More Better Farm Homes," was given under the direction of Miss Mary Borreson of the agricultural extension service. Miss Borreson called upon four young people, former members of such clubs, to tell of the benefit derived. Robert Bushnell of Adams county and Peter Pratt of Seward county each told of receiving the inspiration to enter the agricultural college thru working in one of the county clubs. Both of these young men have been representatives from the college on stock-judging teams at national meetings.

Miss Leona Davis, a club member in Lancaster county, told of the formation of a university club of former 4-H members who endeavor to encourage freshmen students in continuing work at the agricultural college. Miss Lois Jackman of Cass county, who had served as leader in formation of boys and girls clubs told of the many angles of benefits derived from such association.

Miss Boreson closed her demonstration for more laeders over the state. She promised to any of the women who were willing to undertake the responsibility, the assistance of plenty of printed material as well as a visit from an extension worker.

"Pictures to Live With" was the subject of Miss Edna Benson of the home economics department. Distinguishing features of good and bad pictures were illustrated and much general information relative to the best adornment of homes was given.

Miss Alma Binzel who had been heard at the Wednesday meetings, continued the discussion of the proper development of children, taking the subject, "Habit formation in Relation to Rewards and Punishments." Miss Binzel reiterated former statements placing responsibility for habits, fears and accentuation of traits on the environment and treatment by parents in early childhood. She declared the world would never be safe for infants and adolescents until men and women consider home problems together. She said also that the home economics schools of the future will teach more the patterns of the nervous system than of patterns in embroidery.

The business meeting was postponed until afternoon in order to give Representative E. P. Wilson of Chadron opportunity to speak on the child labor law.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Says glass of Salts help to overcome Rheumatism acid.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kind.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. — Advertisement.

YALE TO MAKE SURVEY.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 8.—A country wide survey of the transportation problem in its engineering and economic aspects is to be begun shortly by Yale university as a means of discovering what program of graduate study in transportation is best adopted to the needs of the country. The survey is also expected to be of great help to the various railroad bodies and commissions now studying the problem and will throw new light on the proposed amalgamation of the roads into several great trunk systems.

SACRIFICE REWARDED

SISTER OF ROSA PONSELLE TO HAVE CHANCE.

Carmela, Who Went Into Vaudeville That Rosa Might Be Educated for Opera, to Sing With Her.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—A dream that was hidden behind a smile, ambition that gave way to sisterly sacrifice, will be realized Sunday night when Carmela and Rosa Ponselle sing together at a Metropolitan concert.

The story begins years ago in the little town of Meriden, Conn., where the Ponselle sisters began their career as choir singers. Later they went into vaudeville, then separated professionally.

Carmela, the elder sister, stepped aside that Rosa might be educated for an operatic career. Whatever her own ambitions may have been, they were locked in her breast as she continued to sing in vaudeville, to finance the younger sister's training.

Rosa Ponselle's sensational triumph six years ago when she sang with Caruso in "La Forza del Destino" seemed the fulfillment of Carmela's sacrifice. How eagerly she dressed her young sister for that great first night. With what unspoken fear she stood in the deep shadow of the wings as Rosa began her song! And with what overwhelming joy she greeted the smashing success that launcher Rosa Ponselle upon her career.

Carmela sang on in vaudeville and benefit performances for six years, while the world showered "Bravos" upon her sister whose success she had made possible. Recently there came the turn of fate which brought her reward.

Cardinal Hayes requested Carmela to sing "Annie Laurie" at a meeting of the Catholic Writers' guild. Otto H. Kahn, banker and music lover, a power behind the scenes of the Metropolitan, heard the song.

A short time later M. Gatti-Cassa called upon Miss Ponselle with a cordial invitation to appear with her now celebrated younger sister in a duet from Aida next Sunday evening. They will sing the scene in Amneris chamber—Carmela, the Egyptian princess, Rosa, her slave.

It will be the first time the Metropolitan has arranged such a family affair since Jean Dereszke and his brothers sang from the same stage.

Folks from the Connecticut town where Rosa and Carmela first sang turned out with a brass band to hail the younger sister's triumph six year ago. They are coming down from Meriden Sunday to show their appreciation of succes that came at last to Carmela Ponselle.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR M'MULLEN

To the members of the Forty-third session of the Legislature of Nebraska.

Ladies and Gentlemen: You have been chosen by your fellow-citizens as their representatives in the law making body of the government of the state, a position that not only confers high honor but also carries with it responsibilities both serious and sacred. They are serious because for the time being, you have been entrusted with the power to define, regulate and control the legal rights of citizens of a great commonwealth; they are sacred because your official acts will have much to do with advancing or retarding the moral and material progress of more than a million people.

On the other hand, you have been favored with an unusual opportunity to render unselfish service to society. You are in a position now to help do the things you believe will be of benefit to the state. Your task will not be easy; your road will not always be smooth. You will find divergence of opinion where you expected reasonable uniformity, and you will be confronted with conflicting interests where you had a right to believe there would be mutual sympathy and common concern.

The executive department, let me assure you, will be anxious and desirous to work with you in every possible way. While the duties of the legislative and executive branches are entirely different, still, their aims and purposes are identical. Each should strive, within the channels prescribed by the constitution, to carry out the will of the people. Each should co-operate with the other to that end that the details of a sound and efficient program shall be carried out.

In this spirit of co-operation for the common good, and as required by the constitution of our state, I have the honor to submit the following suggestions for your consideration:

Platform Pledges.

The political party whose members constitute a majority vote in both the senate and the house pledged certain specific legislation in its platform. All such pledges should be redeemed and all promises covering definite legislation should be held inviolate.

Agriculture.

In Nebraska, agriculture is the basic industry. If agriculture prospers, all other industries prosper. Trade and commerce will function upon a profitable basis; labor will be given ready employment under favorable conditions, and all other lines of endeavor will be made comfortable and remunerative. No one state can be expected to solve all the farming problems because some of those problems, if not most of them, are beyond the reach of legislative solution, and some are inter-sectional and international. Yet each agricultural state should do all that is possible to be done by legislation to improve farming conditions, and Nebraska should lead in this direction as it always has in the past.

In the main, the future of agriculture depends, and will depend upon the energy, skill and thrift of the farmer himself. Legislation cannot create wealth. It can, at most, direct the conditions under which it is created. But legislation can and should have much to do with the distribution of wealth once it is created. Within these limitations every effort should be bent, in my opinion, to the assistance of agriculture. Such obstacles as may exist in our laws, to the organization of sound agricultural enterprise, should be removed. Such improvements as experience has shown to be needed in the laws, under which these enterprises organize and operate, should be made. Such measures as seem wisely calculated to adjust production of farm products to their probable consumption and that tend to promote orderly and efficient marketing and distribution, should have your hearty support.

A prevailing agricultural problem is the adequate dealing with bovine tuberculosis. It is well known to be a source of great loss to the breeders and the farmers of the state. It is a grave and constant menace to human health. It can be irradicated by energetic, statewide action. Means to make such action possible should be provided by you.

Roads.

Roads are becoming daily of more importance to the people of the state. The growth of traffic, the increased use of the highways for the marketing of farm products, make it needful that continuous improvement should occur. In the past, much needed work has been neglected or postponed with resulting losses of large extent. If Nebraska is to keep abreast of the needs of her growing industries and her agriculture, she must adopt and adhere to a constant policy of extension and improvement of the roads of the state. I am opposed to building roads from the proceeds of bond issues. I advocate their construction, in sane compliance with the needs of the state, from current funds. I shall constantly urge the most economical and thrifty use of such funds upon roads so built and so located as will most speedily bring the products of farm and factory nearer to the consumer.

Gasoline Tax.

Among the many sources of revenue for road construction and improvement, a tax upon gasoline used in motor vehicles, has met with most general favor and is now a method of raising revenue in a large majority of the American states. Its fairness seems obvious. It tends to place the burden of the cost of the road program upon the user of the roads in proportion to his use of them. The heavy vehicle which naturally wears hardest upon the highways, with its relatively greater consumption of gas, will pay its due share. The pleasure vehicle, without apparent economic importance, also pays its due proportion. Such a tax is easy and certain of collection, and I recommend the passage of legislation necessary for its adoption in this state. I also recommend, however, that with the imposition of a tax upon gasoline, there go concurrently a reduction in the license now charged for motor vehicles. In my belief there should be no increase in the amount of the taxation, but only a change to a more equitable means of procuring the necessary revenue for roads.

Safety In Highway Traffic.

I invite your attention and ask your action upon legislation greatly needed to increase the safety of the users of our public roads. The toll of death and injury upon the highways is appalling. Some adequate provision should be made whereby the criminally careless or incompetent driver be effectively penalized for his mis-use of the roads of this state. A proper system of traffic regulation and provisions for summary punishment of offenders calculated to prevent a repetition of the offence, should have your careful consideration.

Law Enforcement

The basis of sound government lies upon respect for the law. Unless the laws are adequately enforced this basis is impaired. The governor of this state makes no laws. It is his duty to enforce such laws as the statutes direct him to enforce. I invite your thoughtful consideration of such amendments to our civil and criminal codes as may increase the certainty of punishment and may tend to lessen the number of shocking crimes of violence against the persons and property of our citizens. As governor of Nebraska, I promise you every effort will be made, within my constitutional and statutory powers to enforce them. Violations of the prohibitory laws lead in many instances to other violations of other laws and the commission of other crimes. It will be my purpose to aid and assist in the suppression of this illegal and criminal traffic.

Irrigation

The importance of the large and growing sugar beet industry, of our western counties, to the general prosperity of Nebraska, must be apparent to all. Those sections of the state devoted to this branch of agricultural production are noted for their thrift and energy and are capable, under proper encouragement, of greater development to the general benefit of all the people of the state. This industry depends upon an ample and steady source of water for irrigation, and any action that will tend to prevent encroachment upon the sources of water now available for this use, should have your earnest support.

Labor

Without labor all industry fails. Whatever improves the standard of labor improves society as a whole. Labor thus far has progressed thru systematic organization and thru intelligent application of principles producing permanent benefit. The eight hour day is now recognized as a just and equitable period for service. The right to collective bargaining by labor's delegates is universally unquestioned. The compensation law as written into the statutes of our state is of common benefit to both employer and employe. Its success, like the success of any other law, rests upon the manner of its administration. Any legislation tending to facilitate or improve such administration, will receive my approval.

Economy.

There is always an urgent need of economy in connection with public expenditures. I urge upon you the most mature consideration of thrift and efficiency in the use of appropriated funds. The burden of the taxpayer is heavy. Where possible it should be lightened. While it is true that by far the greater portion of the taxes in Nebraska are levied by agencies other than the legislature, still, you should have constantly in mind the purpose of making taxes still lower, provided, it can be done without impairing any of the necessary activities of the state. I promise you that so far as the executive branch of the government is concerned, diligent and constant effort will be exercised to direct the expenditure of the funds appropriated by you so that the people shall receive full value for their money. However, a wise discrimination upon all points of economy should always be maintained. It is frequently the case that prudent expenditure is the truest thrift. The various institutions of the state, for example, should not be made to suffer thru a misapplication of so-called economy, nor should any department of the state government be hampered in efficiency thru lack of necessary funds.

Intangible Tax.

A law was enacted at a recent session of the Nebraska legislature to define, classify and tax so-called "intangible" property so as to produce, what advocates of that law hoped, would be a larger and steadier stream of revenue to the state. In its operation that law has proved a disappointment to many people. An amendment either of classification or in the rate of the tax, or both would seem in the light of experience to be required, and to such amendment I herewith call your attention.

Education.

Nebraska deservedly ranks high in the standing of its educational institutions. They are among our greatest assets and attract to our state each year many new citizens and result, indirectly, in the investment of much capital. In more ways than one they pay large dividends to the people of the state. The economic conditions of the past few years have required appropriations for these institutions to be lessened, while at the same time the attendance has greatly increased in all or in most of them. Crowding of students and lack of sufficient facilities for instruction and supervision have progressed to the point where further continuation of these conditions means a permanent lowering of educational standards. I therefore urge upon you a careful study of these problems to the end that all necessary action be taken adequately to maintain and promote the cause of education.

State Capitol.

The new capitol building has progressed far enough to make it clear that if completed according to the plans of its gifted designer it will be a monument for many long years to the civic dignity of a great state. The management of its erection seems to have been ably conducted by the commission in charge. I am informed that to complete the structure will require a continuation of the present levy for a period of practically three years. I recommend the passage of the appropriate legislation to produce the necessary funds.

Conclusion.

In the foregoing paragrahps I have called your attention to several matters which I think require your consideration and action. It may be that as the session progresses other vital and important subjects, pressing for legislative recognition, will come to my notice. Should such be the case, I shall consider it my duty under the constitution to submit them to you.

Finally, in view of the responsibilities placed upon us, let it be our mutual privilege to perform our respective duties in a manner that will not only reflect credit upon our efforts but also will result in promoting the general welfare of the state.

At the annual meeting of the freight and transportation bureau the following were chosen as members of the board of control: George H. Clarke, E. E. Bennett, John T. Dorgan, J. G. Chapin, Paul Bartlett, M. Friend and J. C. Harpham.

Isaac Benton announced that he would erect a row of modern flats on the property near the corner of Sixteenth and P streets.

The campaign in the Philippines was still going on, with engagements against the insurrectionists at various points.

Superintendent Gordon laid before the school board his plans for a new model of training school.

University Place.

One hundred and sixteen Sunday school workers will attend the Standard Teachers Training school at the University Place Methodist church January 11 to 16. The Sunday school administration class to be taught by Dr. H. C. Wilson of Chicago has proved the most popular, and more than thirty have registered for that course.

University Place excepted the Havelock Methodist church has the record for number of student registered. From the church there, of which Rev. G. A. Randall is pastor, eleven pupils have signed for the courses.

At the first session next Sunday afternoon, 130 workers are expected to be in attendance. Prof. F. M. Gregg of Wesleyan is dean of the school and Rev. Frank Finch of University Place is registrar.

SAPIRO MAY SUE FORD

ATTORNEY TO ASK FOR MILLION DOLLARS.

Unless Manufacturer Retracts Statements in Magazine Cooperative Promoter to File Suit.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Suit for $1,000,000 will be filed against Henry Ford within thirty days unless he retracts certain statements made in his weekly magazine, the Dearborn Independent, against Attorney Aaron Sapiro of Chicago, it was announced today.

Sapiro has mailed Ford the document prleiminary to filing suit. Under the laws of Michigan a formal demand for retraction must be made before suit is filed. Sapiro is attorney for several farmers cooperative organizations.

"Mr. Ford, thru his publication, has made an attempt to destroy my participation in the cooperative movement," Sapiro said.

The articles in question linked his name with Bernard Baruch, Otto Kahn, Julius Rosenwald, Eugene Meyer, jr., and Albert D. Lasker, all millionaires. In one article the foregoing were charged with a plot to organize the farmers of America in the interests of communism, Sapiro charges.

Sapiro quoted from one article as follows:

"This whole Kahn-Baruch-Lasker-Rosenwald-Sapiro program is carefully planned to turn over to an organized international interest the entire agricultural industry of the republic. Between the lines one reads the story of the Jewish communistic movement in America, which seeks to make of the United States what it has already made of Russia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—A resolution denouncing "False and unwarranted attacks made upon the cooperative marketing movement and its leaders by Henry Ford thru his newspaper, the Dearborn Independent, was adopted by the National Council of Farmers' Cooperative Marketing associations at the closing sessions of its convention here today. "We resent attacks based upon ignorance and inspired by prejudice," the resolution said.

Your Problems

By Mary Gordon

Dear Mary Gordon: I suppose when you have read this you will turn aside and sigh, "Another hopelessly ioditic sentimental woman." You will be right, too, I know but I can't help it.

And the tragic part of it is I am married to a plain, ordinary man, a grocer. Oh, yes, he makes us a good living, the two children and myself, but then he never tells me he loves me. His actions show he does, of course, but I want to be told! Sundays he takes us driving in the car and he goes out only one night a month, and then to his lodge.

Not long ago I met a handsome young man who adores Browning, Keats, Shelley, Elinor Wylie and Edna St. Vincent Millay. He asked to call and talk about them, since our tastes are similar and I consented, just for once. But someway the times have increased, until he comes now about twice a week.

The neighbors are beginning to say nasty things and I know if my husband ever heard it he would not understand. None of them can see that it is mental companionship I crave and was almost famished for, before I met the young man.

Mary Gordon, what shall I do?
—Nina.

A. Poetry is all very well, but are there no women in your town who can give you the "mental companionship" you crave? Isn't there some tired teacher of English who would embrace the chance to talk Keats and Shelley with you? If there is none, why not form a literature club? You could have many stimulating times together, you and the other women who have the same tastes—and undoubtedly there are several in your village.

As for the young man, does he ever enjoy a meal of your husband's fancy and staple groceries? Why is he not at work?

Deep in his soul, your husband probably has more poetry than the sentimental young man ever dreamed of.

Where are your children, while you are reading Elinor Wylie?

Appreciate that good husband—haven't you heard the wails of hundreds of women, in this column, who long for what you have lightly cast aside?

Be a mother of whom your children can be proud.

Dear Mary Gordon: I am entertaining my bridge club at luncheon next week. Please suggest a menu.
—T. K. L.

A. This menu suggests a simple and appetizing luncheon to serve your favorite club. If desired, the bouillon course may be omitted and by substituting a colored ice for the cream pie the menu may be used as light refreshments for a bridge, radio or evening dancing party:

Chilled Grape-Fruit
Bouillon Bread Sticks
Crab Meat Salad
Potato on the Half Shell
Boston Cream Pie Chocolate Mints
Cocoa or Coffee

Dear Mary Gordon: How glad I was to read what Tom's wife had to say in the Mary Gordon column December 30.

It was refreshing to learn that a wife could be a real help to her chosen pal. So many marriages are not based upon the fifty-fifty proposition. The women expect too much, and many are not willing to should their burden of responsibility, when establishing the new home.

When I think of my pioneer mother and other mothers of that period who suffered untold distress in their efforts to keep the home fires burning, I become quite impatient with the young matrons of today.

They seem to expect that marriage must bring them a beautiful home, lavishly furnished, a nifty car, with all the time in the world to use it, with nothing much to do, but kill time and run up expenses. They are married, their purpose in life has been accomplished. They are sitting pretty. It doesn't make much difference about hubby. He is supposed to work every day, rain or shine, sick or well in order to keep wifey comfortable, and if he is not able to keep her in the "click" she has chosen, he comes in for scoldings and abuse. It is enough to take the courage out of any man's heart.

If a wife could realize that marriage means a life partnership of the two, to be taken seriously, each to stand by the other, no matter what troubles arise. I think most men feel this responsibility, and if the wife would give what she is especially fitted to give, the loving home atmosphere it would mean so much to the man out in the world living in daily contact with keen business competition. She would see to it that he had freedom and comfort in his own home above all else in order to fortify him against failure to provide a decent home.

There are still many "old fashioned lassies" who count it "the blessing" to preside as "queen" over a lad's home. Who would willingly give the smile instead of the frown, who would see that a good meal was invitingly prepared. Who would count it a love task to have slippers beside the easy chair to rest the tired feet, and paper and magazines close at hand. And she would keep quiet as a mouse out of consideration for him and his comfort. Home would be his sanctuary and no stenographer could make even an impression upon the real man with a home of that character.

Now I expect some of the wives will object and think I have outlined their position in the home as a slave. But hubby took on the role of slave gladly when he married, and marriage is no butterfly existence for either party. There are sacred duties to perform and especially if children come to bless the home. And they do contribute their blessing to the home if they are carefully trained. And careful training means careful preparation with the sacrificing of many outside pleasures for a number of years. The sacrifice comes usually when the young people could enjoy outside pleasures so much.

But it does no harm to give them up and your rewards begins then and follows you into the later life, when you are better able to appreciate just what are your blessings in this life. Believe me, Tom's wife was repaid—Evangelene.

Helpful Hints.

At the first sign of fresh flowers beginning to fade, drop an aspirin tablet into the water. This will revive them at once and keep them fresh for several days longer.

A mixture of equal parts of olive oil and black ink will restore suede slippers and remove rustiness.

Leaky hot water bottles can be restored to their former usefulness by using your automobile vulcanizing outfit and mended the same way you would a tire.

If you scratch brown shoes go over the scratch with some brown school crayon and then apply brown polish. If carefully done the scratch will seem to have disappeared.

When hemstitching by hand wrap a pieces of colored paper around the first finger, sewing it so that it remains in place. The fine threads against the color are much easier to see and the work does not tax the eyes so greatly.

To store fine white linens, take an old pillow case and blue it a deep blue. Fold the things in it and they will not turn yellow. Blue tissue paper will serve the same purpose.

Ink may be removed from a linen tablecloth by steeping the cloth immediately after the ink has been spilled in boiling milk.

OTHERS MAY HAVE HANDLED LETTERS

Ray Eaton Unable to Say Whether He Told Incident to Postal Inspectors When Apprehended.

The missing test letter whose loss led to the arrest and indictment of Ray E. Eaton, now being tried in federal court for alleged theft from the mail, might have passed thru some other person's hands, Mr. Eaton implied in his testimony Thursday morning. He said he dropped about half the letters he had taken from the Burlington depot mail box, having a large bunch of them and needing both hands to unlock the mail room door, and repaired a damaged envelope before going back to pick them up. When he did go back, he found that someone else had rescued the letters and laid them on a table in the work room. Mr. Eaton admitted that he might not have mentioned this incident to Inspectors Roland and Range when they questioned him the night of July 9, but did not remember with certainty.

The repaired envelope was offered in evidence as the one that had contained the other test letter prepared by the inspectors, which was properly dispatched and recovered from the mail car. Both contained money, and some of the marked money from the missing letter was found on Mr. Eaton's person that night. He told the jury Thursday that a depot employe known to him only as "Hal" had handed him four one dollar bills and two half dollars as he was hurrying toward a train with a mail pouch, and with the money was a "dope sheet" showing who had contributed to the pool for which Mr. Eaton was asked to hold stakes. This sheet was not found on Mr. Eaton that night and has never been seen since, so far as has been brought out.

The defendant admitted signing a statement written by Inspector Roland, but said that he had insisted then and since on his innocence, and had signed the alleged confession in the hope that it would minimize his sentence if he were convicted, and avoid as much publicity as possible on his wife's account.

"When they wouldn't let me telephone to Mrs. Eaton early in the evening I got pretty sore," he said, "and I'm not exactly clear as to everything that was said after that, but I do remember saying to Mr. Roland when he filed my copy of the charge against me, attached to my statement, 'You know this isn't true—I will maintain my innocence to the last.' "

Character witnesses called by the defense included G. E. Gannon, Walter L. Davis, A. H. Youmans, George Scoffield and E. M. Marooney, the last a special agent for the Burlington.

DEBTS HOLD FIRST PLACE

INTERNATIONAL MONEY SITUATION IS SERIOUS.

Barred From Open Discussion by American Participation, Question of What Is Owed Is Important.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—International debts overshadowed the Paris financial conference today.

Not agreed on the agenda and barred from open discussion by American representative, the question of what the allies owe each other and the United States assumed an importance far exceeding that of division of reparations.

Before today's session of the conference of finance ministers took up the partition of Dawes payments, Winston Churchill and M. Clementel resumed discussion of the French debt to England.

The British chancellor of the exchequer informed the French finance minister that Britain maintains integrally proposals made by the late Andrew Bonar Law, providing for almost total cancellation of the debt, under certain conditions. These include abandonment of France of a billion gold marks sent to the bank of England in war time.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. H. S. G.: I see no reason to change from plain water to barley water. The amount of sugar you are using is giving the baby all and more starch than he needs. In fact I think six tablespoons of dextrose too much for so young a baby. Eighteen milk and seventeen water and three tablespoons of the dextrose put into seven bottles is all right.

Mrs. E. M.: It is very bad to keep rubber panties over the baby's diapers. The tendency of rubber is to cause profuse perspiration because it is air tight, and to keep a large part of a baby's body done up in an air tight garment is certainly anything but healthful. A baby should gain from four to six ounces weekly from the eleventh day on, so it would depend on what the baby weighed at birth whether ten pounds is a good weight now.

Mother of Three: I think that this feeling is quite typical of that experienced by all nursing mothers. Milk coming into the breasts is usually accompanied by a sensation of nausea. I believe you are worrying unnecessarily. The baby is a splendid weight for two months.

Mrs. H. D. R.:—The baby is getting all the food she needs, in fact twenty-one ounces of milk is correct for her weight. She should not be fed oftener than five times daily at her age. She is not too young to accustom her to a regular movement on the stool each day. Choose a time just before the bath insert a suppository and hold her over the stool. Do this every day for a week. This establishes a habit.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." They "clear' clouded brain and 'perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

WOMAN HAS TINY CHANCE

LORA PALMER MAY RECOVER FROM BULLET WOUNDS.

Corsican Chemist Who Shot Her and Killed Himself Had Endeavored to Effect Reconciliation With Wife.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 8. — The romantic "illusions" of Francis X. Bernard, Corsican chemist, precipitated the tragedy which ended his life and nearly caused the death of Lora Palmer, French instructor at the University of Wisconsin, Mrs. Cora Palmer, the girl's mother, said today.

Miss Palmer was never engaged to Bernard, nor to any one else. Her interest in the Hibbing, Minn., chemist was never more than a friendly one, Mrs. Palmer said. Bernard wanted to marry her, but Miss Palmer had never encouraged him, the mother declared.

With those statements, Mrs. Palmer disposed of stories that the Corsican's ardent love for Miss Palmer was reciprocated.

Mrs. Palmer specifically denied a story to the effect that a second suitor, to whom her daughter was engaged, had asked Bernard to release Miss Palmer from her "pledge" thus seeking to clear the way for their marriage.

Mrs. Palmer spent most of the night at the bedside of her daughter, who was shot and seriously wounded by Bernard yesterday morning a minute before he killed himself.

Miss Palmer will recover from her wounds "unless complications, such as peritonitis, set in," the latest report from General hospital today said.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 8.—Miss Lora Palmer, the pretty twenty-eight-year-old instructor in the romance languages at the University of Wisconsin, who was shot down by a maddened lover, has a fighting chance for life.

Physicians at the hospital today announced the girl's condition as favorable. Their only fear is that complications may set in and result in death.

The body of Francis X. Bernard, the thirty-two-year-old Corsican who shot Miss Palmer in the front room of the French house and then killed himself, probably will be removed to Hibbing, Minn., for burial.

"Her condition is fair and we believe she has a good chance to recover," physicians said.

If Miss Palmer's condition warrants, police will question her today regarding her relations with Bernard. In the meantime officials are perusing a batch of letters said to have been exchanged between the two. While Miss Palmer, on her way to the hospital, gasped out that her only interest was to help Bernard in his aspirations to become an instructor in French at the university, police hinted that her interest may have been more personal.

Surgeons stated that during the night Miss Palmer awakened from a sleep and said:

"I helped him. He fell in love with me. But I couldn't love him; I couldn't make up my mind to marry him."

The campus buzzed with excitement today. Miss Palmer was popular. Aside from being an instructor, she was chaperone of the French house, occupied by co-ed students in French literature, history and language.

Miss Palmer's affair with the Corsican had been only little known to her companions. They knew she met him at Hibbing, Minn., where she was an instructor in a school. Bernard was anxious to become an instructor at the university and Miss Palmer helped him with the French language.

None knew of the man's love for Miss Palmer.

Miss Palmer did not expect him, co-eds at the French house said. Bernard's appearance was a surprise. Police want to question Miss Palmer on what transpired during the ten minutes between the time he entered the house and shot her and then killed himself.

SUPERIOR, Wis., Jan. 8.—Spurned by both his former wife and Lora Palmer, University of Wisconsin French instructor, Francis X. Bernard, Corsican chemist, left here Sunday night vowing to take his own life, it was revealed today.

Yesterday he carried out his threat and in addition had seriously wounded Miss Palmer.

"She's gone back on me. I'm thru with her," so Bernard told his ex-wife Sunday as he handed her the picture of the girl.

Mrs. Bernard, from whom he was divorced a year ago, revealed this phase of the Corsican's tragic romance today when she learned of his suicide in the French house at Madison.

"I guess he loved her," she said, "and when she scorned him he was very much broken up."

Just before leaving for Madison, Bernard pleaded with his former wife to return to him, she said. She refused and he warned her not to be surprised if he killed himself.

Bernard threatened her life several times while they were living together, Mrs. Barnard said.

"One time he even went to the cellar of our home and returned with an axe which he brandished over my head," she said.

District Attorney Philip LaFollette announced today he had obtained a statement from Miss Palmer, but refused to divulge its nature. It is understood the statement reveals new angles to the tragedy.

An inquest over the body of Bernard will be held some time today, LaFollette said.

WALT MASON

The Hard Road

Leo's busy in the pen doing what he's told to do with the weary grim-faced men who have knocked the laws askew. When we turn him loose again he'll be old, and grim-faced, too. Leo, he was passing slick, much too smooth for honest toil; and he sold the gentle hick lands he said were soaked with oil, making laws and statutes sick, turning down the rules of Hoyle. Leo's fortune soon was great, money came by every mail, and he lived in pomp and state such as might with kings prevail; every hour he skinned a skate, robbed a sucker of his kale. Now he's toiling in the pen and his heart is sick and sore; gone are all his iron men, gone are all the gems he wore, and he's weeping now and then as he scrubs the prison floor. From his window with its bars he can look out on the night, see the happy Volstead bars, where the lights are glowing bright, see the passing motor cars, and the people's sane delight. Honest men are going by, thinking life a lonely pome; happy wives are buying pie for the cherished ones at home; only crime must sweat and sigh underneath the starry dome. Leo had a first rate head, Leo had a bulging brow; had he worked to gain his bread it were better, you'll allow, for the crooked life he led put him where you see him now.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron.)

On Ordering One's Life.

How well have you ordered your life?

Whenever I visit some friends of mine who built themselves a very charming little house a few years ago, I find myself making that comment, sometimes to myself, sometimes to them.

They are people who cannot get away for long in the summer on account of the nature of the man's business, but on the other hand they are not obliged to tie up to street cars because they have a machine. In fact they cannot depend upon any car service because his work sometimes keeps him until the middle of the night. For the first years of their marriage they lived in a rented apartment in the city while they looked the ground over thoroly and decided just what they wanted to do.

Beautifully Arranged.

They finally chose a situation on the shore of a lake where they will get swimming, fishing and canoeing in summer, and ice boating and skating in winter. Behind them is a country club. They are not on a direct car line into the city, which makes land reasonable and keeps the district from building up too fast, but they are only eight miles from the city by machine. They have as many sports to enjoy as their friends who can get away in the summer, and they have also the solid comfort of their own home to enjoy them in, not to be duplicated by any but the most expensive summer cottages.

For winter they have the oil heating system which makes it possible for them to leave the house whenever they want for a few days without fear of pipes freezing.

The house is marvelously compact and convenient and equipped with every labor saving device, making them reasonably independent of service.

They Get Their Money's Worth.

They have no children, but aside from that misfortune, I know of few people who more thoroly get their money's worth out of life.

And it is because they have planned and ordered the circumstances of their lives and not chosen carelessly, as so many people do.

I know another couple who are intensely fond of all outdoor sports. When the man was fifty he made a choice. He decided that instead of trying to make more money he would try to get more joy out of life. He made arrangements with the head of the firm that he should train an assistant to do the simpler part of his work and that henceforth he should work only three days a week. The rest of the time he and his wife spend in their camp in the country doing the things they have always loved best to do. Isn't that a better ordering of his life than going on earning more money every year and still being tied down.

Of course, when one has children it is not quite so simple to order one's life. They are a big factor that has to have first consideration. Nevertheless even with children I think it is possible to order our lives so as to get a great deal more real happiness and benefit for both ourselves and the children if we analyze what is most worth while in life, and how we can plan to get it, instead of simply living along from day to day in a rut of convention and circumstance.

As for the people who don't have children, who miss that great joy, isn't that all the more reason why they should try to find themselves whatever compensations they can? They cannot have the sweetness of family life. They do have freedom. Surely they are foolish if they do not use that freedom to the best advantage.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Your Tuxedo Waistcoat.

These be breezy days of easy ways. For years it has been one of the hallowed tenets of etiquette in evening dress never to wear the tall hat with the Tuxedo jacket. This rule was preached so continuously and caustically that obedience to the decree almost ranked with good citizenship and civilized practice. Today, in the larger metropolitan centers you see men wearing the opera (collapsible) hat with the Tuxedo jacket, and they are not scalped, nor even stoned by the populace. While the practice is in no sense general and is not specially to be admired, it is tolerated, thus marking a radical breaking away from accepted social usage.

The utility and popularity of the Tuxedo suit are too well established to require either comment or compliment. It is important, however, that the accessories worn with this turnout be properly chosen to set it off. Contrary to common belief, the Tuxedo is not informal evening dress, but semi-formal evening dress. Hence, it prescribes the wing collar, not the fold-over collar; the starched or semi-starched shirt, not the soft bosom; the black derby or soft felt or velour, not light colors; the straight-knob walking stick, not the hooked handle; gloves of gray suede or mocha, not capeskin or chamois.

The true smartness of the evening jacket is derived from the attention you pay to the incidentals of dress, for, inside of bounds and outside of styles that are only "bounders," almost any cut or cloth is correct, from black to dark gray; from shawl lapels to peaked; from plain worsted to herringbone weaves; from the single-breasted jacket to the double.

If you wear the black waistcoat, and most men prefer it to white, you may depart from the monotony of the conventional effect, by adopting a corded silk fabric of the type reproduced here. This is not a black-and-white pattern, but a cloth showing a self-ribbed design in black upon black. The waistcoat is 4-button, with peaked bottom corners and an oval-shaped front opening. It has low armholes and is markedly waisty. Either the 2-stud or the single-stud shirt having a plain or pleated bosom is proper. The collar is the bold-tab wing shape and the tie is long, snug of knot and broad of ends.

AGED SUPERIOR MAN DEAD

Badly Burned Body of H. C. Smtih Found in His Yard—Hold Inquest Thursday.

SUPERIOR, Neb., Jan. 8.—H. C. Smith, sixty-eight years old, of Superior and Edgar for the past twenty years, was found dead in his yard in West Superior about 8 o'clock this morning. The body was badly burned. Cause of death is still uncertain.

Sheriff Wood of Nelson was called and inquest will probably be held Thursday afternoon. The aged man slept alone in his home last night, his wife being sick and cared for at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Ike Stansberry living in another part of Superior. It appears that the man went to a cob shed at the rear of his property this morning to get fuel to kindle a fire. Kerosene was stored in a five gallon can in the shed and some had been drawn out in a small tin can. Some of the liquid remained in the overturned tin near the dead body. Smith was an inveterate smoker. His cob pipe was found on the ground near him.

The body is said to have borne evidence of kerosene having been poured on his clothing. It is possible that the kerosene ignited from his pipe and the contents of the can spilled over his clothing as he ran from the shed. The body was badly burned all over the surface. A wife, six married daughters and one son survive him.

LIVING COSTS OF FARMERS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Living costs the average American farmer with a family $1,600 a year.

A survey by the U. S. department of labor of typical farm families, the man, his wife and two or three children, in Iowa, Ohio and Alabama, arrived at this approximate figure according to statistics just made public. The average cost of living for Iowa farmers who owned the land on which they lived, arrived at by a survey of 212 families was $1.876.90, of which the farm furnished $756. The average of 239 tenant families was $1,506, of which the farm furnished $645. Families with hired men spent $1,431, of which $589 came from the land.

Madge's Strange Encounter with a Chinese.

FOR a second or two I thought Mother Graham would fall to the ground, from sheer terror at the vision my idle words had evoked, that of the possibility of an appearance at the house of the mysterious man she so dreaded. I held on to her tightly, and spoke with unusual sharpness.

"What nonsense, Mother!" I exclaimed. "He never would dare do that?"

She twisted in my arms and stared at me in affright.

"He!" she repeated. "What do you know about any 'he?' "

"Nothing at all," I promptly replied. "But you have been saying the word repeatedly. " 'He' will do this, and you are afraid 'he' will do that, so I naturally supposed some man was annoying you in some way. Don't you think you'd better tell me all about it, so that I may take the burden of whatever is troubling you upon my younger, stronger shoulders?"

Her face and body sagged with relief, and her eyes lost some of their terror.

"To-morrow," she said faintly, "you'll probably know everything I know, but until then—I'm not sure—perhaps it's not true after all—perhaps he hasn't proofs—don't pay any attention to me, Margaret. I don't know what I'm saying half the time."

"Don't Think About It."

"Don't think about it any more, then, until to-morrow," I counselled her soothingly, drawing her to the armchair by the fire and settling her in it. Then for the next half hour. I devoted myself to the task of diverting her mind from the thing which was troubling her.

It was an old ruse I used, that of asking her advice about problems, real and imaginary, concerning Junior, and it worked beautifully. After a while, she declared herself ready for a nap. I tucked her in not only with the consciousness of a task well done, but with the assurance that I would have an hour or two free for the investigation I meant to make.

For my eyes had seen what Mother Graham's, older and dimmer, had not been able to discern—the glimpse fleeting but distant, of a man's hat just below the tops of the small trees in the woodland skirting the garden.

I had walked with Dicky in that woodland, and I knew that if a man stood erect in it, his head and shoulders would be plainly visible. The fact that I could glimpse but the hat made it certain that the man moving through the shrubbery was bending over double as he walked.

That could mean but one thing—he was trying to avoid being seen—something which spelled some sinister purpose to my imagination, already inflamed by the revelations concerning the mysterious man in the shrubbery made to me by my mother-in-law and the children.

That there was something sinister, menacing in the attitude of this unknown man, I was now certain, and with the certainty came the determination to confront him if possible and find out his errand.

Wrapping up warmly, I slipped into my pocket the tiny silencer pistol which Lillian gave me long ago, and which I am never without when I go upon any uncertain or dangerous mission. I am thankful, indeed, that I never have had occasion to use it, although I have leveled it more than once at some menacing figure, and have known that the protection it gave me meant my life.

"I Came to the Hedge."

I made my way down the back stairs, thanking my particular little joss that I met no one, not even Katie, busy helping little Mrs. Durkee in another part of the house. Keeping close to the hedge, screening the kitchen door, where I knew I would be out of sight of any window of the house, I soon came to the hedge separating the Durkee property from that which we used to own.

Secure in the knowledge that the owners had gone away, I slipped through a gap in the hedge, and taking a leaf from the book of the mysterious marauder in the woodland, I bent double and ran along close to the fence until I came to the footbridge across the brook.

I found myself shivering a bit as I entered the thicket where I had seen the man, and my fingers tightened their grip upon the little pistol. But I need not have feared. There was no trace of either man or beast in the entire piece of woodland, although I searched it thoroughly.

I finally retraced my steps, thoroughly mystified, ready to believe that both Mother Graham and I were fit subjects for a psycopathic ward, when from behind me a soft voice said insinuatingly:

"Missee Graham looking for Lee Chow?"

I whirled and confronted the Chinese who had said he was Hugh Grantland's servant.

FAMOUS "FIRSTS"

Brief Stories of the Men and Women Who Led the Way

By MARK STUYVESANT

How the First University Was Started at Bologne.

"RAH, RAH" boys clad in knickers and bright colored sweaters, sleepy old buildings set in the midst of green lawns, hours of study relieved by football in Autumn and boat races in Spring "proms" and 'varsity shows—spell college life in the twentieth century. A college town is marked by its spirit of youthful gaiety. Its streets are filled with young people and its whole life revolves around the boys and girls, who come year after year in endless succession for a brief sojourn in its ancient halls of learning.

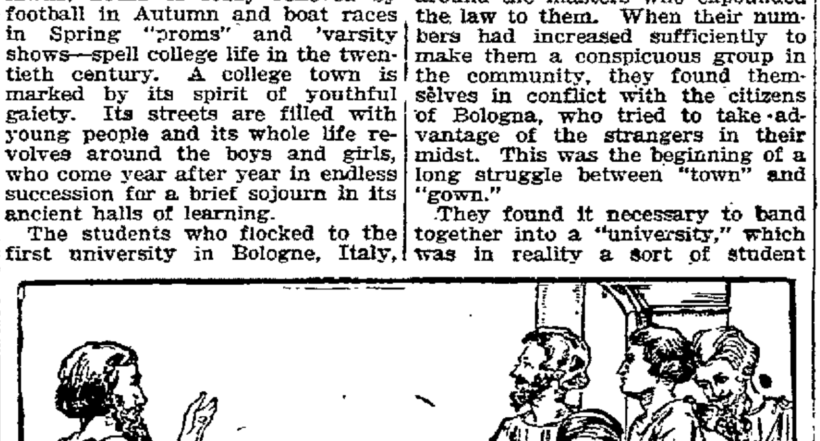
The students who flocked to the first university in Bologne, Italy, were, for the most part, bearded dignitaries of the church, venerable deacons, archdeacons, heads of schools, canons of cathedrals and like functionaries. They came from all over the continent in search of knowledge which could not be found within the walls of the monastery or cathedral schools, chiefly the newly revived study of civil law.

This was in the twelfth century, during a period of prosperity and expansion. The rapid increase in population and wealth, the greater complexity of political relations, growing manufactures and commerce, all required a more definite knowledge of the laws handed down by those great Roman lawmakers, Theodosius and Justinian.

There was no regular school building to which the students came. There was no definite method of registration. They came in haphazard fashion and grouped themselves around the masters who expounded the law to them. When their numbers had increased sufficiently to make them a conspicuous group in the community, they found themselves in conflict with the citizens of Bologna, who tried to take advantage of the strangers in their midst. This was the beginning of a long struggle between "town" and "gown."

They found it necessary to band together into a "university," which was in reality a sort of student guild, for the purpose of securing the protection and rights which they could not otherwise claim, since they were not citizens. They were especially fortunate in securing the protection of Frederick II, Emperor of Germany and heir to the title of Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire.

Barbarossa, as he was called after his red beard, was then in conflict with the Pope, and he realized that these professors of law and their students would prove valuable allies in pushing forward his imperial pretentions. Accordingly, he received them with all graciousness and granted them special privileges and immunities, which were embodied in the body of the civil law of the empire and later extended to include all other universities.



Students Grouped Themselves Around the Masters

Advice to Girls ☙ By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I'm a girl of eighteen, and about four months ago I met a young man of twenty-one. I went with him until about three weeks ago and enjoyed his company very much.

He promised to call one night, but didn't come. He had never done this before. The next day I saw him on the street, and when I questioned him he said he had been out of town and couldn't call.

I excused him and asked him to call again, but he still acted very strange. He said it was impossible, but would see me at a dance we were both going to. We were both there, but he didn't pay any attention to me and took another girl home. A few days later a friend told me that he had heard something I had said about him. I have talked to him about it several times, but can't convince him that I didn't say it.

Now, dear Annie Laurie, he is very good-looking, attractive and well-liked, and I value his friendship highly. Do you think I could ever win him back?

PUZZLED.

PUZZLED: If this man trusted you as a friend, he would believe you when you told him that the story reported to him was not true. Since he does not take your word for it, dear, but prefers to believe this false gossip, he is not worthy of your friendship. Without mutual confidence there can never be a real friendship.

Just don't bother about him, dear, but go with your other friends. When he discovers his mistake he will make the advances.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man of nineteen and am going with a very sweet young lady eighteen years of age. At the present time she is down South. She writes me often.

I think a great deal of this girl and she has said she thinks as much of me. But we have quarreled several times and, dear Annie Laurie, she has never given in. I have always been the one to give in. What do you think she thinks of me?

VERY WORRIED.

VERY WORRIED: There's nothing to be "very worried" about, young man. Friendship always involves some sort of compromise, and it happens that you are better-natured than your friend. But that shouldn't interfere very seriously with your friendship, providing you generally get along.

Don't take things so hard. Just be pals and forget your little differences.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Safeguarding Things We Do Not Like to Lend.

THERE are certain of our possessions that we don't like to lend. Not that we are selfish, but they are personal and we are attached to them enough to think that they reflect our own personality, and it seems like lending a foot or hand and it hurts to see others using them.

Perhaps we should head the list with umbrellas. Every one has, or should have, one or more of his own, and every household should have an umbrella of the cheaper sort to lend when it becomes necessary to do so—one of the gloria mixtures with a stout frame and the family name marked inside to insure its return. A week-end guest, for instance, frequently is without this convenience, and is quite happy to accept the protection of the family umbrella instead of borrowing someone's favorite.

In one family a wise mother, whose family was all equipped with raincoats, kept on hand a waterproof cape of ample proportions for guest use and found it invaluable. It was made of material that in no way lost its value by being folded away in a drawer until needed.

What One Hostess Did.

A hostess in a country home where the young people, daughters and sons, had a great deal of company, had a hall cabinet with a glass door and a good lock, and in it she kept all the small toilet conveniences, sponges, wash cloths, shoe dressing, hairpins, pins, tape and the other little things so often needed by visitors and borrowed. The prices were all marked on the things and a box was provided for cash. She carried the key, and when things were asked for she would provide them at the regular store price, which enabled her to keep up her stock. This was thought a bit mercenary by some, but the fair-minded all felt it more honest to buy than borrow and were willing to pay. Among the little necessities were stamps, always borrowed and when borrowed rarely returned. It is an idea worth borrowing by other hostesses who have suffered from the persistent borrower who fails to pay back these debts of convenience. In a small town borrowing becomes acute at times and a stand has to be taken to rid one's self of the nuisance, as those with experience know.

Kitchen utensils are not immune from the borrower's list, and the preserve kettle, the ham boiler, the fish kettle and large pie plates are the things most frequently sought. These things are expensive, as such things go, and not used as often as the other things, so people don't buy them. But they always know where to borrow when they are needed. These things, if carelessly used, burn and scorch easily and we would rather do it ourselves than have it done for us.

Vacuum Cleaner Needs Care.

The vacuum cleaner has many invitations out and it is wise to refuse if we value the cleaner. People who have none are apt to be unused to caring for it and almost always some little thing will be out of order or broken when it is returned. Sometimes the borrower offers to foot the repair bill; some times they insist "it was that way when I borrowed it." Anyhow, it is harder to have an argument over it than to just say, "I am sorry, neighbor, but I never lend." In rare cases it may cost a friendship; in most cases, however, people will realize the justice of the stand you take.

It is an excellent idea to fold a kimona and a simple nightie in the guest room drawer, with a pair of Turkish slippers for the guest who has forgotten hers or who is without until her trunk arrives.

Another wise scheme is to keep six or a dozen plated forks, tea and table spoons to lend a neighbor who has extra guests come suddenly for whom she cannot care, rather than to lend your good silver and have to worry for fear it will be lost or scratched.

Children should be discouraged in every way in borowing. They should be provided with all the things they need in school and at home, so that the idea never enters their head. Better go without than borrow. A child who never has its needs supplied soon becomes known, and it is shunned by the very ones with whom it would like to be friends.

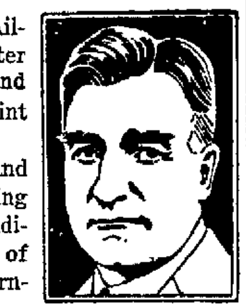
YOUR HEALTH

Soap, Clothing or Nerves May Cause Skin Itch

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.



DR. COPELAND

ITCHING of the skin is a common Winter Ailment. Sometimes it is called "Mid-Winter pruritus." In the old days of red flannel and heavy underwear it was a more general complaint than it is in these days of modern dress.

Our skins differ in texture, oil content and sensitiveness to heat, cold and dampness. Anything that disturbs the demands of the particular individual may cause just enough irritation in some of the other surfaces to cause violent itching and burning.

The wrong kind of soap may act as an irritant. Some soaps appear to be too strong. That is, they are so strongly alkaline as to cut and remove all the oils from the skin surface, leaving it abnormally sensitive.

Chapping of the skin from moisture which evaporates and disturbs the surface, is another cause for itching. This was one of the factors in the heavy underwear period.

Disturbance of the circulation is another cause for trouble. On removing the clothing, especially the stockings and garters, the lower limbs may furiously itch. One can hardly resist the impulse to scratch and tear the skin to relieve the suffering.

It is a common experience to have one patch on the body that is the only itching place. This may be due to some disturbance in the nerve supply. But even in such cases, there must be some exciting cause to start the trouble.

There are many sufferers in whom itching of the skin is a sign of fatigue, overwork, worry, late hours, dissipation, excessive stimulation, and all the other causes for nervousness and a run-down condition.

Certain diseases—for instance, diabetes and jaundice—have itching of the skin as a symptom. Intestinal absorption, delayed digestion and sluggish kidney action may be responsible.

In the way of treatment, the first suggestion is that a greater quantity of water be used for drinking purposes and for a time to keep water from the itching area.

Select a mild soap and use it sparingly. Apply cold cream to the affected parts after bathing.

Adjust the clothing so there is no interference with the circulation.

For the itching itself, there is no other application equal to hyposulphite of soda. A teaspoonful in a cupful of water, applied by patting the surface with a pad of cotton, will give relief. In a very bad case, add a cupful of the hyposulphite to a tub of water and soak in it for a quarter of an hour.

M. K. Q.—My father suffers from occasional pains due to stones in the bladder. Is this a serious condition and how can these pains be avoided?

A.—This is serious inasmuch as it is very painful. Usually in such cases an operation is indicated for permanent relief, but there are several remedies which will give temporary relief. Follow the advice of your family physician, who is familiar with the case.

T. R. Q.—I have a peculiar noise in my left ear. It sounds like steam from an engine. Will you kindly tell me what causes this?

A.—This is probably due to nasal catarrh. If you will send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, restating your question, full particulars for the treatment of this condition will be given.

D. D. Q.—What will keep the feet from spreading?

A.—Properly fitted shoes should prevent this condition.

ANXIOUS. Q.—What can be done for white scars left by neglected ringworms?

A.—If the scars are slight, they may be removed by the use of the X-ray. Why not consult an expert in this kind of work and be guided by his opinion as to whether this would be advisable in your case?

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Dashing Evening Gown.

MADAME came in quite late this morning.

We manikins had expected that she would, for we knew she had gone to a big Charity Ball last night.

For weeks past all our most fashionable clients have been coming in to select gowns for the occasion and the party must have been a very brilliant affair.

Madame herself had worn a gorgeous coral velvet that she had designed for the party, and all of us had taken great interest in the making.

We were gathered downstairs in the salon when Madame entered the shop to-day, and, of course, we all immediately demanded an account of the ball.

Madame sank upon a divan and gave us a glowing description of the ballroom and the decorations.

"And now tell us about the gowns," I urged.

Madame closed her eyes a minute and said:

"I can see them still, every color imaginable, and really as beautiful a collection as I have ever seen together."

"Which ones did you like especially?" I queried.

"The ones I designed myself, of course," Madame answered promptly with a twinkle in her eye.

"And after that?" I asked.

"Well, seriously," Madame began, "I must do a sketch of one of the most stunning gowns there. It was worn by a Russian princess and it really was a dream."

We waited, breathless, while one of the girls found pencil and pad and Madame began to sketch.

"The dress was fragile silver lace over gray satin," Madame explained as her pencil moved.

"And it had a very long, slim line," I added, as I saw the outline of the model she was drawing.

"In fact, it had no waistline at all," Madame continued. "It was simply a long, straight sheath that ended in a lace frill which dipped up a bit at the center-front."

Here Madame applied her eraser a moment and then corrected a line under the arm. She explained:

"The gown was very decollette at the back, as you will see from the dip of the neckline here in front."

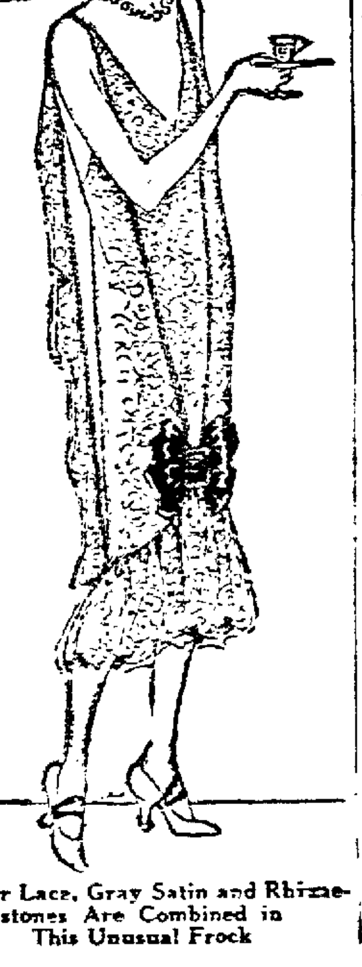
"I adore evening gowns with almost no backs at all," Gaby remarked.

"Then you would have liked this one," Madame assured her.

Now Madame busied herself drawing fine lines from either shoulder, which sloped into a bow placed low at the center-front.

She explained to us that the lines were simply two rows of glittering rhinestones, and that the bow where they met was of bright cherry velvet, the only touch of color on the gray frock.

We exclaimed with admiration and Madame insisted that the last feature was the most striking of all. She referred to lace ruffles that swung from either shoulder to drop at the back and that were sewed to bands of rhinestones.



Silver Lace, Gray Satin and Rhinestones Are Combined in This Unusual Frock

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, JANUARY 9.

According to the conflicting sidereal operations ruling this day there is the prospect of contradictory developments. In any event it may be a day of unusual interest and possibly excitement. Under a friendly Saturn there may be a breaking away of old congestions and obstructions, but the adjustment to radically new conditions should not be jeopardized by too rash or eager methods or by disputes. Care and deliberation should be observed in all activities as well as in the matter of physical safety.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of important change, probably radical in nature. The benefits of breaking away from old obstacles should not be jeopardized by impulsive or rash acts or quarrels. The physical condition should be safeguarded. A child born on this day may be industrious, persevering and steadfast, despite a tendency to impetuosity and irritability. It may be fond of change, restless and unconventional, being independent in thought and action.

Good Night Stories

DICKY MEETS A NEW KIND OF ANIMAL IN THE ZOO.

DICKY stood looking at the queer animal behind the wires a long time.

"Sure, look me over, I don't mind. I know I'm not good-looking, but I can't help that," laughed the prisoner. "I'll bet you don't know just what I am by the expression on your face."

"Well, I can't say for sure," replied Dicky. "But you are just about the color of a Hyena; he's dull yellowish gray, marked with dark brown stripes like you are, and he has a black muzzle like yours, too. I should say you were some kind of a Hyena."

"Wrong!" and the prisoner behind the wires laughed until his teeth showed. "But I can't blame you. You probably have never seen an Aard Wolf before. Then my back slopes backwards just like Mr. Hyena's does. You see my front legs are much longer than my hind legs, that's why my back slopes down!"

"Now, if you had looked carefully at my long pointed snout, you would have seen it wasn't anything at all like Mr. Hyena's. Then I have five toes on my front feet. He can't boast of these. My mane of long stiff hair along my back makes me look quite wild, doesn't it?"

"I'll say it does," laughed Dicky. "I've never seen an Aard Wolf before, and I'm sure glad to meet you."

"As long as I'm behind the fence," chuckled Mr. Aard Wolf. "Oh, I guess you're not the only one afraid of me. But you see we Aard Wolves are night prowlers, so we hardly ever meet a man."

"But when and where do you sleep?" Dicky answered, eager to find out all he could, so he could tell his Daddy when he got home.

"We sleep in the day time in our burrows," replied Mr. Aard Wolf. "And believe me it's some burrow under the ground we make, too. Mine has four doors leading out of it. If anything chases me or breaks into my house I have four ways of getting away. And let me tell you right here, I can run even if my front legs are longer than my hind legs."

"But what would you do if some one chased you when you were a long way from your house?" Dicky asked. "Climb a tree or something?"

"I'll say I wouldn't," chuckled Mr. Aard Wolf. "I'd just run until I couldn't run any more, then I'd burrow a new hole and get down in and burrow out on the other side of a tree or bush or something.

"Oh, it takes a pretty foxy hunter to get me. Of course I mean, that's what I would do if I was running wild again. But, thank goodness, I'm happy right here in this zoo, and I love to tell folks all about myself and family any time they care to stop and question me. Now if you'll excuse me," and Mr. Aard Wolf yawned lazily, "I'll go inside for a nap," and before Dicky could say another word, he disappeared.

PAUL BERLENBACH FAST RISING STAR

New York Boxer Shows Great Improvement—Hefty Left Hand, Speed and Headwork His Assets.

BY FRANK GETTY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(United Press)—No greater improvement has been shown by any rising young boxer this winter than by Paul Berlenbach of New York

The youngster whose main asset in the ring was for some time nothing more or less than a hefty left hand has added speed, headwork and footwork to his repertoire.

Berlenbach demonstrated this in convincing fashion when he flattened Larry Estridge in less than two rounds. The negro middleweight champion was giving away a lot of weight, of course, but has been known to do this with success in other bouts. Against the new Berlenbach, Estridge could do nothing but run until the knockout punch caught up with him. And Paul showed himself fast enough to get it there without a great deal of lost time.

This improvement in Berlenbachs ring form opens the way to interesting speculation. Pauls star, ascending, threatens to dim that of young Stribling and other youngsters who are on their way to the titles now held by the old-timers, Greb and Tunney and McTigue

There is talk of matching Berlenbach with "Tiger Flowers," and this should make a most interesting match, indeed. The latter is a comer, too, a negro of no small promise. Fans who have not seen "Tiger Flowers" in action have missed one of the fistic treats of the winter. His recent exhibition against Johnny Wilson, fat ex-middleweight champion, did not extend the "Tiger," who stopped the Italian in a few rounds.

For a long time, it was held that Stribling would whip Berlenbach, because of the Georgia boy's superior speed and boxing skill. Stribling still has something on the New Yorker in these respects, but Berlenbach, as has been said, has improved tremendously in his footwork and apparently retained the sock which won him his popularity and the respect of fistiania's light-heavies.

Berlenbach Has Arrived.

Berlenbach has "arrived" back, after his defeat—a knockout by Jack Delaney. The latter, a clever boxer and fairly good hitter, appeared in the semi-final bout against Pal Reed when Berlenbach met Estridge at the Garden. It was a bit odd to see a victor taking second place to the man he had beaten, but there is little doubt as to what would be the outcome if Delaney and Berlenbach met again.

Estridge himself once was feared by Berlenbach. It was more than a year back when Paul was knocking over set-ups. One night one of the latter didn't show up, and Estridge made his way to the ringside and noisily challenged Berlenbach. The latter wisely refused the match. At the time he was no match for the negro, a canny fighter with a good string of victories to his credit.

In the main, Berlenbach has been well handled. He has been brought along gradually, and given plenty to do punching over soft ones in a few rounds. He has fought as often as three times a week, but always "set-ups." Delaney was an accident. Paul learned a lesson. At the same time his being knocked out that night was one of the bset things that ever happened to him. And it showed, furthermore, that he could take a licking and come back, which almost everyone who is going to be a champion has to be able to do.

Dan Hickey, one of the most astute managers in the fight game, has been piloting Berlenbach since the Astoria slugger switched from wrestling. Hickey stood between Paul and the fans who would have shouted him into too tough matches, and only gave in grudgingly to the boxing commission when absolutely necessary, and let his man meet Delaney, with disastrous results.

Jim Coffey, who made quite a stir in the heavyweight ranks for a time, was another "discovery" of Hickey's. Berlenbach looks likely to go a lot farther than the "Roscommon Gient."

UNI AGGIES TRIM BULLDOG QUINTET

Rufe Dewitz's Tossers Take Long End of 30 to 23 Score—Roth and Manning Star in the Battle.

Coach Parminter's Cotner Bulldogs bowed to the University Aggie goal sharks, 30 to 23, in a battle waxed on the Bethany court Wednesday night. The Aggies led, 10 to 9, at the half. The Cotner seconds nosed out the Wolff Cycles, 19 to 8, in a curtain raiser.

Manning, veteran Bulldog forward, starred for the losers with five field goals. Jull, Cotner center, was second high scorer for the Blue and White with a trio of counters.

Roth and Pressnel divided the scoring honors for the Dewitz tribe, the former counting six baskets from the floor and the latter five. The game was fast with both teams fighting about even until the latter part of the final period. The summary:

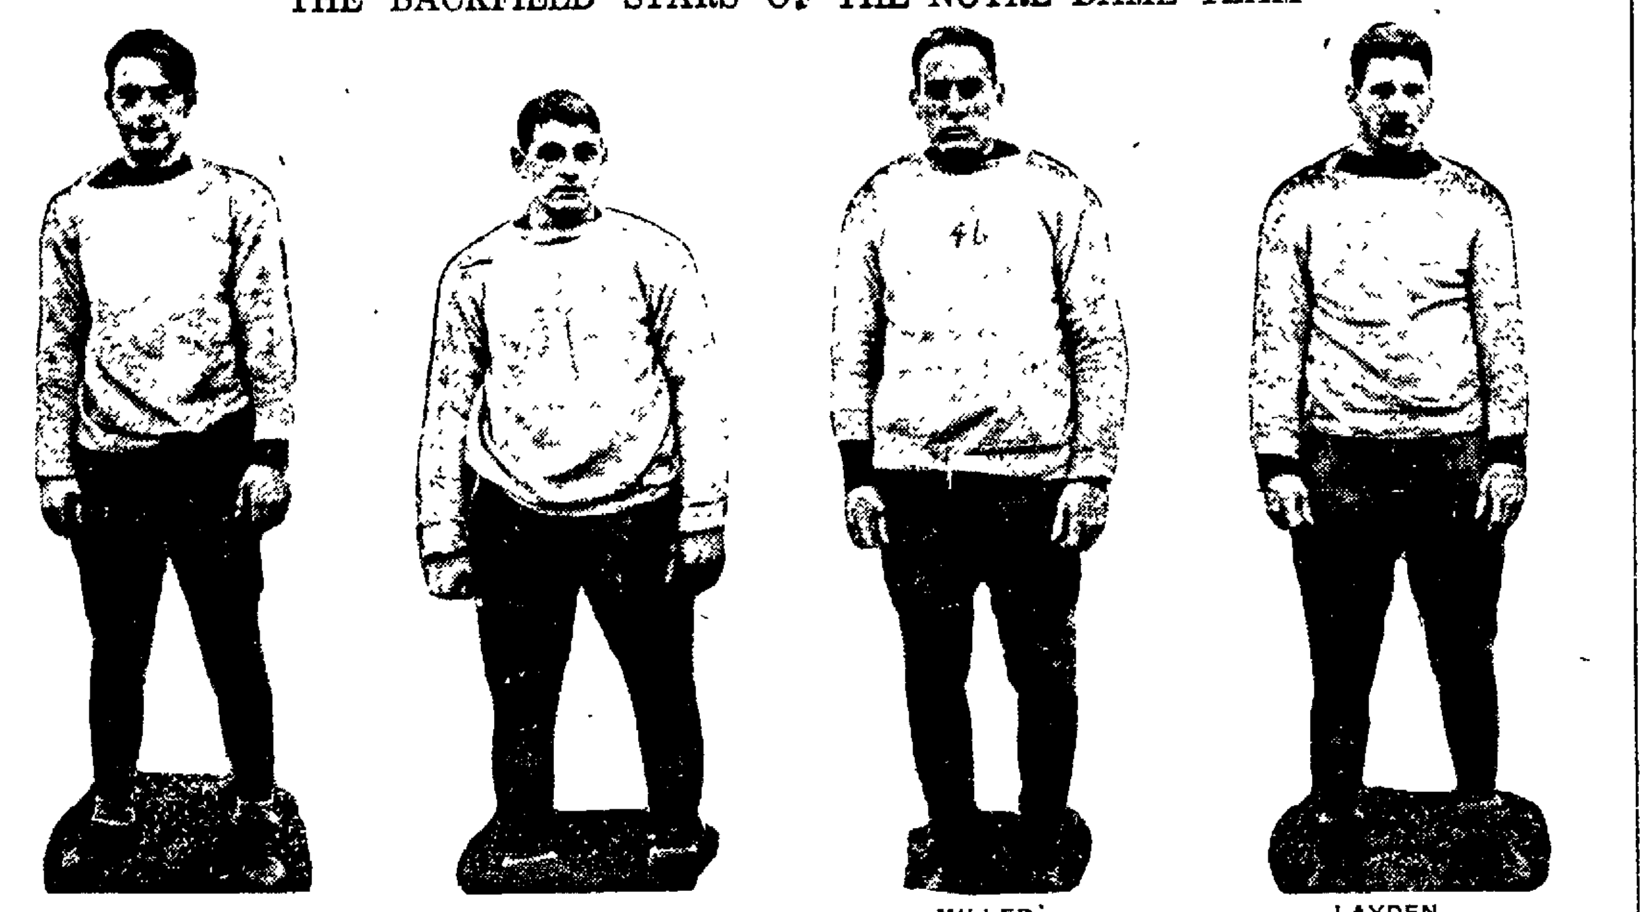
THE BACKFIELD STARS OF THE NOTRE DAME TEAM



CROWLEY. STUHLDREHER. MILLER. LAYDEN.

Three of these men, Miller, Layden and Stuhldreher, the fleet-footed players of the Irish eleven and the football squad are to be the guests of the University of Nebraska football team at the Country club at 6 o'clock tonight. Jim Crowley, halfback, is in California suffering from injuries received in the Stanford Notre Dame game at Pasadena, New Year's day. Nebraska and the Notre Dame team are old foes on the gridiron but friends at all other times. There should be some good football table talk tonight when the two squads get together. Coach Rockne will not be with the squad. Nebraska has the honor of being the only team that has won over Notre Dame twice since the famous Knute Rockne became coach in 1918. The Huskers beat them 14 to 6 in 1922 and 14 to 7 in 1923 and the Irish surely came back hard and paid in full for it when they romped all over the 1924 Huskers to the tune of 34 to 6. The Tuskers who met defeat will face them again tonight but not on the gridiron The Nebraska authorities wanted to pay honors to the world's championship team on their way back from their coast victory and so arranged the entertainment tonight. The banquet is an invitation affair and the football team, athletic board, Athletic Director Dawson, coaches, board of regents, and a few others will be the Nebraska men who entertain the Indiana team.

The train upon which the Notre Dame squad was to arrive at 1:35 p. m. was reported to be over an hour late and they were to arrive in the city at about 3 p. m. from Denver. There will be between thirty and thirty-five in the squad.

FROM MINE BOY TO MANAGER

Bucky Harris Tells Story of Life.

Copyright 1925, North American Newspaper Alliance.

This is the fourth installment of the autobiography of Stanley Harris, youngest major league baseball manager in the history of the game and the victorious strategist and one of the outstanding players in the 1924 world series, in which his Washington club won the pennant for the first time The rise of Harris from colliery boy to big league manager in eight years is one of the most remarkable life stories America has ever produced.

By Stanley (Bucky) Harris.

The work in the office didn't lead to the speedy promotion I expected. Kid-like, I thought I ought to have a more responsible place. I couldn't see myself getting anywhere delivering mail, answering telephone calls and running errands.

"You want to go up too fast, sonny," mother warned me. "A boy can't do a man's work, you know."

After a year as an office boy I was made assistant weighmaster at 18 cents an hour for the nine-hour day. That boosted my weekly envelope to $9.72. I didn't tell mother about the promotion until I brought the first week's wages home to her and laid the money in her lap.

She was peeling onions at the time. Whether the onions were to blame or not, tears ran down her cheeks thru her smiles. She hugged me, praised me for being a big man and told me how much help and comfort I was to her. My eyes got wet, too, and it wasn't caused by the onions either. We had ice cream that Sunday at dinner.

As an assistant weighmaster I had to keep a check on the coal leaving the colliery. It was the easiest job I had had. I felt big, holding down such a place and making nearly $10 a week before I was fifteen years old.

Nick Stanley was as pleased as if I had been his brother. He told me I would be a mine boss yet if I thought more of work and less about playing baseball.

"That money you say these players get must be a mistake—it cannot be," he declared. "What they do is not work. They loaf too much. When they are old they know how to do nothing."

I continued at night school in the winter, playing basketball Saturday nights to keep in good condition. Merle had told me to exercise all I could to build up my body. I weighed less than 100 pounds. A professional baseball berth seemed a long way off. Still I held to my dreams.

Mother Gives Encouragement.

Had I been older, and known as much as my brother about the obstacles to overcome in reaching a salaried place in the sport, I wouldn't have been so cocksure. I must have made a nuisance of myself with my talk about some day making good in the major leagues. But finally I made even Nick Stanley believe what I so sincerely believed myself. And that was going some I did my work without getting any kicks from my bosses, but when I finished work I dreamed baseball, and I knew the batting and fielding averages of all the stars of the day.

Mother knew my ambition had not waned. My father had been a pitcher for Hughey Jennings in their old semi-professional days in the coal mine district She saw how far Jennings had gone. She encouraged me to keep on when she realized what the game meant to me.

"If you wish a thing as much as you do to play baseball, sonny," she often said, "you ought to succeed if you work hard and take good care of yourself"

Later when disappointment followed disappointment, and failure stared me in the face, she never weakened in her stand Whatever she may have felt inwardly she never showed by word or action. What success I have had I can lay fundamentally to her unswerving faith, cheerful encouragement, sound training and shrewd advice.

I received encouragement of a sort as a player, too. When I went to work in the No. 9 mine, I had had the training most small town boys get in baseball. I had played on scrub teams and finally earned a place as shortstop on the St. Peter's Lutheran church nine. It was in the Sunday School league. We played twilight baseball, staging the games after working hours.

I was far from the best player in the league, but I wasn't the worst. That season Merle was with the Charleston club in the South Atlantic league. Hughey Jennings had placed him there Between working at the pickers, playing baseball in the early evenings and running home in the half-hour lunch period to get a Charleston newspaper and keep track of what Merle was doing, I got enough exercise to kill off almost anyone but a growing boy.

If the paper was delayed in the mails, I went back to work a sadly disappointed lad. Merle was my brother, a real honest-to-goodness professional baseball player and my hero. Naturally I idolized him. The other boys looked up to me. Sometimes I thought they kowtowed to my baseball judgment because of my ability: I know better now—it was Merle.

Merle was not the only one from the mine section in professional baseball. There were Jennings, the Coveleskies, the O'Neills and "Chick" Shorten, to mention a few. The fact that they had advanced increased my ambition. What the others had done, I was convinced I could do. Little did I know of the fight they had had to forge to the front in the most competitive of our sports.

But at that I guess it wouldn't have made much difference to me. I was too cocksure My dreams continued undisturbed as I read daily of Merle's doings and waited anxiously for him to return at the end of the season

Tomorrow: Early Infield Lessons.

MERLE HARRIS.

Bucky Harris' big brother Merle Merle, like their father before them, was a semi professional ball player when Bucky was scarcely a young hopeful. Bucky learned a lot of things from Merle and the big brother finally helped him get the chance that started him.

CONNIE MACK SEES BRIGHT PROSPECTS

Sky Is the Limit as Far as He Is Concerned About Chances of Athletics This Year.

BY J. S. WASNEY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 8.—Jubilant over what he considers a greatly improved team, Connie Mack believes the sky is the limit as far as the Athletics' chances this year are concerned.

Mack has acquired a number of new performers with imposing minor league records and together with the late season showing of the A's last year after a discouraging start, it begins to look as tho Philadelphia once more will be represented on the baseball map.

Most of the veterans hopes are based on his hurling corps. In addition to Rommell, Harris and Gray and Southpaw Baumgartner, Heimach and Meeker, "Lefty" Groves, expensive acquisition from the Baltimore club of the International league, will be on hand These flingers and at least ten rookies will assemble at Fort Meyers, Fla., March 1

The catching department, already strong with Perkins and Bruggy doing the bulk of the work, will be augmented by Cochrane of Portland. The Pacific coast leaguer is rated as a first rate backstop who can hit.

There probably will be a few changes in the infield Hauser will be at first Bishop at second Galloway at short and Dykes will take care of the hot corner with Sam Hale and Marvin Smith available for relief duty

Bishop was ill most of last season and it was necessary to play Dykes on second and Hale on third Mack believes that his inner defense will be considerably strengthened with Bishop a regular and Dykes at his usual post.

Lamar, Simmons and Miller are slated to retain their garden berths with Welsh the principal understudy French and Bagwell, from the Texas league will make a try for outfield jobs

Followers of the Athletics are taking hope in a situation in which the four teams which finished above them in 1924 were all veteran aggregations whereas Mack has a comparatively young team

New York Washington Detroit and St. Louis may slip back when the old timers begin to fail but the signals are all set for Philadelphia to go forward.

TIGER TRACK MEN ARE HANDICAPPED

Athletes Getting Ready for Indoor Meet on Outdoor Track —Squad of Fifty Men Is Out.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 8.—Indoor track work on an outdoor track is proceeding at full speed at the University of Missouri, here, work beginning in earnest with the resumption of school this week following the Christmas holidays. Coach Bob Simpson is directing the efforts of a squad of about fifty men, seeking to whip them into shape for the opening of the Missouri indoor season with the Kansas City Athletic club indoor meet at Kansas City February 7. The K. C. A. C. meet will usher in a busy season for the Tigers, which will include the Illinois relays at Urbana February 28, the Missouri-Kansas indoor dual meet at Kansas City March 7 and the Missouri valley indoor championships at Kansas City March 13.

Altho handicapped in several events by the lack of veterans, particularly men with broad track experience, Coach Simpson expects, with the men now on his squad and several others who are to return before the opening of the indoor season, to have a formidable team. Among the absent members who have promised to be in school when the second semester opens early in February, and who will be eligible, are Keeble, a star hurdler; Reid, a veteran high jumper, and one or two others who will add materially to the strength of the Bengal team.

Fine weather the first part of this week gave a flying start to the outdoor work for the indoor meets and with the snow shoveled off the board path, the Bengals have had practically all of the advantages of an indoor track. How long this advantage is to continue, however, rests of course upon the condition of the weather.

In the Sprints.

In the sprints Simpson will probably feel the absence of experienced men as keenly as in any other event. Two vterans, Arthur D. Bond, 1924 football captain, and Chauncey Simpson, another member of the 1924 football team, are three-year men for the 50 yard event, and Bond will probably also be used in the quarter mile. With them are several likely sophomores including Farley, Stuber, Davidson and Edgington. Farley as a freshman last year placed second in the 50-yard dash at the Kansas City Athletic club meet, and Stuber has a reputation for ability on the boards in both the sprints and hurdles. In addition he has promise in the pole vault and, for the outdoor season, in several other field events.

Bond is the only real veteran among the 440-yard men, tho two others have had some experience. Coggins worked with the squad for several weeks last year and started in the open quarter at the K. C. A. C. meet. He was jostled and fell before thirty yards of the race had been run, and received an injury which put him out for the season, and Johnson had some outdoor experience with the varsity last year, tho he was not on the team during the indoor season.

Among the other quarter milers are Charles Parker of Kansas City, who is a brother of Bahlman Parker, former Tiger captain and quarter miler; Ream, Purdew, Hanna, O'Sullivan and Tuttle. Parker is handicapped by a slight physique, but is a heady runner and may make the grade, while Ream, who placed third in the open quarter at the K C A C. last year is counted as a formidable contender. O'Sullivan and Tuttle are as yet undecided whether they will be with the track squad or the basketball squad during the winter season, but both will undoubtedly be with Simpson's aggregation during the outdoor season at least.

Veteran in 800-yard.

Former Captain Pittenger is the only veteran in the middle-distances—the 880-yard and mile runs —where Coach Simpson, during the indoor season at least, is going to feel acutely the loss of Moulder, whose broken leg, sustained in football, has put him out of track for the indoor season, and probably for the year. Barada, who placed in the 1,000-yard handicap at last year's K. C. A. C., where he ran unattached as a freshman and Ponder and Purdew are the most likely candidates for the half, while Lewis, a sophomore, and Matthews, a member of the 1924 cross country team, make up the other milers.

Captain Poage, whose consistent work in the two-mile thruout the 1924 season was one of the features of the Missouri valley conference track annals, is leading a squad of two-milers in which experience is almost wholly absent. With him are three members of last fall's cross country team—Steele, Vallett and Matthews.

If Keeble returns and is eligible and Stuber reports for track those two men, along with Chauncey Simpson, will give Coach Simpson the pick of the conference indoor hurdlers Keeble set a new world record in the high hurdles at the K. C A C meet at Kansas City last winter and won both the high and low hurdle races setting conference records in each in the Missouri valley conference indoor championships Simpson won the low stick event in the K C A C meet the same year, was second in both hurdle races in the Missouri Kansas dual, and fourth in both in the Missouri valley conference indoor Coach Simpson counts Stuber as second only to Keeble in the valley in the highs, altho Chauncey Simpson will probably beat him out in the lows

In Richerson and Etter the Tigers should have first and second places in the shot put in every meet they enter Richerson holds the conference record in the shot put, while Etter won that event at the Illinois relay carnival last year with a heave which set a new carnival record A husky sophomore, McAnelly, is the third member of the weight heavers' trio.

In the pole vault Donohue is the only veteran on the squad, but Lancaster, a Kansas City boy, is a promising teammate for him. Lancaster has promise of making the best vaulter Missouri has had in years, and probably surpassing the work of Floyd, who holds the Missouri record in that event.

Bransford and Reid are slated for the high jump, both of them members of last year's team.

In the Basket.

MISSOURI CAGERS LEAVE FOR AMES

Tigers Off On Three Game Trip—Will Play Ames, Drake and Grinnell—Seven Other Quints in Action.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 7.—With eight of the nine teams in the Missouri conference in action this weekend, the 1925 cage season will open Wednesday night with the University of Missouri squad taking part in three of the eight games scheduled for this week. Leaving here Wednesday afternoon, the Tigers will play Iowa State at Ames Thursday night, Drake at Des Moines Friday night and Grinnell at Grinnell Saturday night. Other games for the first weekend include Kansas at Grinnell Thursday, Kansas at Ames and Nebraska at the Kansas Aggies Friday, and Kansas at Drake and Nebraska at Oklahoma on Saturday. Washington is the only team in the conference which does not get into action this weekend. The Pikers play their first game at St. Louis a week from Saturday, when they meet Oklahoma.

Coach George A. Bond of the Tiger squad will start this week's trip, the heaviest of the 1925 season, with little more than half the strength of his squad available, due to the lack of time he has had in which to put together that part of his squad which has been working on the M. U. court since October and that part from the football squad which became available for basketball only last Saturday, upon returning from Los Angeles, Cal., where the Tiger grid team met the University of Southern California Christmas day.

Four Vets Are Back.

Several cage veterans are included in the list of basketball men released to Bond from the grid squad, among them Walsh, Lewis, Whiteman and Smith, while some of the most likely members of the freshman cage squad of last year, including Stuber, Bacchus, Tuttle, Lindenmeyer and O'Sullivan, also fall in the number of men who are handicapped due to the short time they have had to work with the rest of the squad. Smith has an injured leg, but the others are in good shape to settle down for earnest basketball training.

BIG MUNN LOOKED UPON AS WINNER

Trainer at Kansas City Believes That He Will Get the Decision Over Strangler Lewis.

Thursday night will decide whether Wayne "Big" Munn is to be the champion wrestler of the world or whether Strangler Lewis will continue to wear the heavyweight crown. Lou Talaber of Chicago, who is coaching Munn, is reported as saying that Munn will be the next champion. He is quoted as follows by a Kansas City newspaper:

"Munn has everything that any man needs," said Talaber, following his initial workout with Munn, whom he has been engaged to train for the title match. "He possesses unusual weight, a necessity to a champion: a great amount of strength and an unlimited reservoir of endurance."

Asked if he did not think that Munn was still a little "green" and that he was being "rushed along" a bit too rapidly, Talaber answered emphatically in the negative

"Joe Stecher, one of the greatest wrestlers of all time, was almost unheard of six months before he won the world's championship," said Talaber

Talaber has worked with Munn in perfecting several holds and defenses for the Lewis headlock According to the tutor his student is very apt

WALKER GETS THE BEST OF M'TIGUE

Is Aggressor in Twelve Round Bout and Wins Practically Every Round in No-Decision Contest.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(United Press)—Mike McTigue will continue to be the light heavyweight champion until he meets a good man his own weight or until he will let a referee tell him how bad he is.

After making a terrible showing against little Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion, in Newark last night, McTigue gave evidence that if he wants to find an opponent he can defeat he had better jump down to the flyweight class.

McTigue ran away from Gene Tunney and Tom Gibbons when they challenged him and he jumped two classes away from his title to take a beating from a good welterweight.

Careful Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, of the world was saved again last night because he was working in territory where a decision could not be given against him.

Some time ago McTigue was given a bad beating in Newark by Young Stribling, a young southerner of his own weight and size and last night he was outpointed in the same ring by little Mickey Walker, the welterweight champion of the world.

Walker, because he stayed on the aggressive and tried to poke his bigger opponent out of a shell of defense, won practically every round of a 12 round no-decision contest that drew 9,000 spectators.

Walker weighed 149 3-4 and McTigue was under his divisions weight at 160 pounds.

The welterweight champion forced the fighting from the first round and in the third round it seemed that he had McTigue going but the light heavyweight champion used his head and got out of the hole.

McTigue landed but one hard punch and that was a right hand to the head that knocked Walker clear across the ring in the first round. The little fellow was not slowed up however, and he returned to force the fighting.

For four rounds it was a fair fight with Walker digging and tearing away at the body and McTigue keeping himself carefully covered up But from the fifth round it was a slow listless contest that had the spectators showering razzberries on the fighters.

Both fighters made excuses after the contest and they needed to explain why they had made such a poor showing for two champions. McTigue said he had hurt both his hands and Walker said that he had entered the ring with a heavy cold and that he did not know that he was so weak as he found himself in the middle of the fight.

McTigue did act as if he had hurt his hands but the fans figured that the injury must have happened out of the ring as he didn't hit Walker with enough force to do himself damage. McTigue did very little but stick out a left hand in Walker's face that was not as harmful as it was exasperating.

Walker had been favored generally to outpoint McTigue in a no-decision fight because McTigue cares very little about the results of fights wheer there are no hands lifted at the finish. Some thought that Walker would win by a knockout but that was not logical. What would Walker have done with the light heavywegiht championship if he had won it?

HUSKERS TO LEAVE FOR OPENING GAME

Coach Klines Quintet Goes to Manhattan Tonight to Meet the Aggies There Friday Night.

Coach Kline's basketball team leaves at 6:55 p. m. Thursday for the opening game on the Husker schedule with the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan Friday night. From Manhattan they will go to Norman to meet the Oklahoma U cagers. Seven letter men, Captain Volz, Tipton, Goodson, Beerkle, Ekstrom, Usher and Black will go on the trip, and Reynolds and Andreason, new players.

Nebraska has been showing up splendidly in practice and gave the Hillyards at Kansas City a close game, 20 to 19. The Kansas Aggies lost to the Hillyards 33 to 24, Kansas U. won out over the Hillyards by a narrow margin. The Hillyards at St. Joseph have been used as a measuring stick for sizing up valley teams before the season opens

The dope is a little in favor of the Huskers but the Aggies have some good players and may put up a harder battle than the dope would indicate. There are four letter men back at Manhattan. Oklahoma has a good outlook with five letter men back on the team. The Sooners finished second in the valley race last year with Nebraska third. The Huskers will face a hard game.

The trip for these two games will be one of the hardest as the men will ride all night Thursday night, play the Aggies Friday night and leave at midnight for Norman where they meet the Sooners Saturday night

NEW TROUSERS TO SHOW BAGGY TREND

Width at Top and Bottom to Resemble Skirt—Claw-Hammer Dress Suit Replaces the Tuxedo.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—If you want to be set apart from plumbers' apprentices, clerks, bartenders and drug store cowboys, you must wear the time-honored claw-hammer dress suit, the International Association of Clothing Designers convention declared today. Tuxedoes are passed because everybody from the bus boy to the street cleaner wears 'em, George E. Serak, spokesman for the association stated.

"The dinner coat was a makeshift, which the war allowed to become permissible," George said. "When the army abolished its full dress uniform, we let down the bars a bit. But now all the excuse for it is over, and the 'class' will be distinguished from the mass by the clothes it wears on dress occasions."

Serak also revealed that business clothes this year will be cut along the lines of the big barrel-chested he-men. This will be offset by the color effects. Colors include pale opaque, giddy grays and all the delicate shades up to limpid lavender, which Serak describes as being of the tone of elephant's breath.

"Powder blue is as dead as prohibition, London lavender is the new shade," he said.

"Baggier trousers are decreed. The width of the trouser, both at the top and bottom will resemble that of a skirt. No corsets will be necessary for the 1925 model runabout, however. The waist line will be narrower and the shoulders broader," he said.

The prince of Wales receives the blame or credit for both the he-man cut and the cake-eater shades of the new clothes. The clothes at first pained American tailors by their bagginess. But now they are all for it.

"The prince of Wales came to Chicago wearing a suit of glen urquhart plaid", Serak said. "The next day tailors received scores of calls for suits of the same material. Also all the men turned down their hats in the prince's sophomoric manner."

A one-button model will make its appearance this year, with a double breasted vest with lapels. Pleated tops on the trousers, long in vogue in Europe, and being just taken up here, will be the thing in the United States this year.

SOLDIERS GET FARMS.

WINNIPEG, Man., (By mail)—Free homesteads and farm grants taken up by soldier settlers brought more than half a million acres of new land under cultivation in the four western provinces in 1924, according to the dominion bureau of statistics. The total number of homesteads taken up in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia in 1924 was 3,151, compared with 2,749 the year before, an increase of about 10 per cent. Soldier settlers taking up farms in this area under the provision of the solider settlement act numbered 653 compared with 462 in 1923. BRAZIL IMPORTS FRUIT.

RIO DE JANEIRO, (By mail)—The fresh and dried fruits trade in Rio de Janeiro has taken on the characteristics of a serious problem, despite heavy importation of North American and Argentine fruits, favored during the past two years by special exemption from import taxes, and the fact that Rio de Janeiro is the capital of one of the world's richest countries in the production of fresh and dried fruits. With a view of assuring a supply of fresh fruits adequate to the needs of the population and at lower prices, the Brazilian government two years ago exempted fruits from the United States and Argentina from import duty, which measure resulted in rapid increase of importations from these countries. The importation of fruits during the year following the adoption of the measure where more than 5,000,000 pounds greater than for the year preceding the adoption of the measure.

AFTER LEAVING THE HOSPITAL

Was Weak and Miserable. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Auger's Strength

Lowell, Massachusetts. — "I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books that you send around and I felt very good after I had taken a couple of bottles of it. I had been in the hospital and felt pretty well at first but I went down to nothing. I was weak and had to lie in bed almost all day. I had dizzy and faint spells, pains in my back and lower parts and was so nervous I could not bear my children around. I hope the Vegetable Compound helps other women as it did me. I do all my own work now and feel so well. I have told my friends about it and my sister and my aunt." —Mrs. OLIVE AUGER, 19 Howard Street, Lowell, Massachusetts.

Over 200,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 out of every 100 of the replies say "Yes," and because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women it should help you.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are among the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease constantly undermines the system.

Weak kidneys may cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and lose flesh.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results are sure to follow. Kidney Trouble in its very worst form may steal upon you.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition, begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the famous kidney, liver and bladder medicine, because as soon as your kidneys are well, they will help the other organs to health.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular medium and large size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

RETIRING GOVERNOR BRYAN'S MESSAGE

To the Members of the Forty-third session of the state legislature of Nebraska.

Gentlemen: The farewell message of an outgoing governor is expected to embody a review of the state's business affairs during the preceding two years and also to give to the members of the legislature and to the people of the state the benefit of any recommendations that the departing chief executive may offer as a result of his study and experience in the discharge of his duties during the time that he has held the position as governor of the state.

The constitution of the state provides that the governor shall take care to see that the laws of the state are executed, that the affairs of the state are properly administered and that the business of the state is efficiently and economically conducted.

In an effort to execute the duties and carry out the obligations required of the chief executive, I have had a varied and interesting experience. The demand of the people, at the time I was elected, was for economy in public affairs and a reduction in taxes. This could be brought about only by a reduction in the cost of government. Altho the full fruits of my plan of reorganizing the state government into a more simple, efficient and economical business method were not entirely attained, I am able to report very satisfactory progress. We have been retarded by the lack of legislative cooperation thru failure to repeal certain statutes that require a continuation of unnecessary and expensive duplications in educational effort, overlappings and triplications in administrative work and an impractical and complex system of government in the administrative departments, all of which results in an imposition upon the taxpayers.

At the time the present retiring chief executive came into office two years ago the so-called code law administration had been in operation under the former governor almost four years. During the biennium of Governor Neville's administration the cost of government was $9,000,000. The unprecedented cost of the state government for the first two years of Governor McKelvie's administration, under the code, was approximately $20,000,000 and during the succeeding two years of the same administration the appropriations for conducting the state's affairs advanced to the astounding amount of $30,000,000. This tremendous cost of government proved to be such a hardship on the taxpayers and so unnecessary from a business standpoint and the protest from the public became so pronounced that a special session of the legislature was called during the second term of the preceding administration and the appropriations for the conduct of the state's affairs were reduced to about $27,000,000.

Reviews State's Financial History.

I am reviewing in a general way the financial history of the state during the six years preceding my administration for the purpose of laying a foundation for a comparison of the cost of government, etc., during the two years of my administration with the preceding two years so that your honorable body and the people of the state may have the benefit of such information as is brought out to enable you to plan more understandingly your legislative program for this session, and also to give the incoming administration the information and facts based upon the experience and observation of the retiring governor as intended by the Constitution.

In my inaugural address two years ago, later in my budget message and in a special message I recommended the repeal of the Code Law, and in its place I submitted to the legislature a practical simplified form of government in which the responsibility for determining the major policies of a state administration was vested in the elective constitutional state officers. The constitutional executive duties of the governor and the administrative work of the state were fixed directly in the governor. The appointive power of administrative employees was fixed in the governor to enable him to maintain an efficient and responsive staff; and the responsibility for the planning and the conduct of the state's affairs was fixed inevasibly in the hands of the elected state officers, who are held responsible by the voters for their conduct of the state's affairs. The recommendations and copies of bills, thru which the recommendations of this simplified and inexpensive form of government could be carried into effect, may be found by your honorable body in the records of the last session of the legislature.

Legislature Retains Code Law.

The legislature of two years ago declined to enact into law the business reorganization of the state's affairs by repealing the Code but in the closing hours of the session passed a bill which diffused responsibility, created six governors in place of one, destroyed the possibility of any co-ordination between the six separate executive heads, and violated and made impossible the chief executive's duty as provided in the constitution. It's only apparent result would have been a dividing of the large number of state employees among the various state officials and neither the governor nor anyone else would have had the authority to remove the unnecessary employees or to eliminate unnecessary duplications, overlappings, extravagance and waste in the multitudinous number of departments, bureaus, commissioners, deputies, inspectors, etc. I felt it my duty to veto that bill and I do not recall having seen or heard any defense of the bill since that time by those who drafted it or supported it.

The outgoing governor two years ago recommended in his budget message $24,239,797.98 as his estimate of the state's needs during the present biennium. I recommended a budget fifteen days later providing for a cost of $21,987,554.41 as the operating expense of the state's activities. The legislature appropriated $24,652,532.44. Of this amount $23,191,582.44 corresponded with the items covered in my budget of $21,987,554.41, or in other words the legislature appropriated $1,203,978.03 in excess of what the chief executive recommended, altho in making up a list of the appropriations the state auditor omitted $1,368,063.02 which was reappropriated of the capitol building fund, which was included as one of the items in my budget recommendations, and by placing this item separate from the appropriations by the legislature it was made to appear, and the report was widely circulated thru the state, that the legislature had appropriated $1,083,234.05 less than the governor recommended when as a fact it was $1,203,978.03 in excess of what the governor recommended or, in the chief executive's opinion, was needed to conduct the state's affairs conditioned on the repeal of the code law.

Altho notice was given by the governor that he would veto the unconstitutional and unworkable code revision bill that was passed by the legislature, the legislature failed to make any appropriation for salaries of code secretaries, six of whom were drawing salaries of $5,000 per year. Thus the governor was left with a code law in effect but with no provision to pay the salaries of code secretaries. By reducing the number of state employees, by abolishing unnecessary departments that were not required by law, by transferring activities from one department to another, by dispensing with the services of some departmental heads, some bureau heads, some division heads, and by consolidating and coordinating work between various departments, a great reduction in the cost of administering the state government has been brought about.

Number of State Employees Reduced

During the first six months of the present administration as compared with the first six months of the preceding administration the number of state employees in the departments directly under the governor were reduced from six hundred ten to two hundred seventy-two. The administrative expenditures of the departments under the governor were reduced for the first six months of the present administration as compared with the first six months of the preceding biennium $917,742.47.

The number of employes in the departments directly under the governor who are employed by the year as shown on a list prepared for the incoming governor as of January 1, 1925, is 221. In an effort to establish and maintain efficiency in the departments directly under the governor's control the governor has during the past two years voluntarily established something on the order of civil service among certain classes or grades of work such as engineering, mechanical, accounting, bookkeeping, stenographic, clerical and other skilled labor where it was not necessary to secure executive and administrative heads who were in sympathy with and were needed to carry into effect the policies of the chief executive. Of the 221 regular employes referred to above, 121, or more than one-half, were a part of the staff and in the employ of the former governor.

State Taxes Reduced.

The saving in taxes during the past two years as compared with the two preceding years has amounted to $2,155,[illegible]. This represents a saving of that amount in the cost of operating the state government during the past two years as compared with the two preceding years. It means that there has been $[illegible] less collected from the people in the form of taxes for state purposes during the past two years than was levied in the two preceding years. This represents a reduction in the taxes levied for state purposes for the years 1923-24 of 33 per cent plus, as compared with the years 1921-22. These tax statistics are supplied from the state tax commissioner's records and represent the tax levy as made by the state board of equalization and apportioned by it to the various counties of the state. As illustrating this biennium means to the various counties, it will be observed that each county in the state is now sending an average of about $66,000 less to the state treasurer this biennium than they were required to do during the preceding biennium. For instance, this means a saving to the taxpayers of Lancaster county of $296,309 during this biennium, as compared with the taxes for state purposes during the preceding biennium. The saving to Douglas county amounts to $629,882, and to all other counties in proportion.

Cost of Road Building Reduced.

During the past two years the cost of building roads has been greatly reduced. This has been brought about by a rule adopted by the chief executive which was enacted into law by the last legislature on the recommendation of the governor. This law requires that for all public work to be done, the state or counties must advertise for bids and that these bids must be received and opened at the hour set for the bidding to be closed and that the bids must be opened in the presence of the bidders. This rule prevents what is known as "teakettling" of bids and also encourages competition in bidding, as it assures the lowest bidder getting the contract. County commissioners have been encouraged to bid on state aid work in their respective counties as assurance against collusion in bidding by private contractors. A threat to open a state gravel pit secured an immediate reduction of about 33 per cent in the price of gravel. Thru these various means the cost of road building in Nebraska has been reduced between 25 and 30 per cent, representing a saving during the present biennium in road construction alone of about $600,000 as compared with what the road work was costing in Nebraska prior to the past two years.

Price of Coal Reduced.

The chief executive of the state, acting in his individual capacity and not as an official of the state, has done what he could last winter and this winter to protect the people of the state from profiteers in some of the necessaries of life, comfort and convenience such as fuel, gasoline and oil. In response to a demand of the people of the state for protection against the high price of coal I undertook to furnish coal in car lots at the mine price or wholesale price to the officials of any municipality in the state or to any public committee or officials of any organization who would assist in the distribution of coal at a reasonable price. As a result of this plan real competition has been established thruout Nebraska in the sale of coal, and the retail price of coal has been reduced from $3.00 to $5.00 a ton and has resulted in a saving to the people of the state of about $10,000,000 a year on their fuel bills. The state has had no connection with and has paid no part of the expense of handling coal.

State Reduced Price of Gasoline.

The reduction in the price of gasoline by the state, thru the chief executive fixing a reasonable price at which gasoline should be sold, has resulted in a saving to the people of Nebraska during the past year and a half of a sum conservatively estimated at $9,000,000 a year. During the summer of 1923 it was observed that there was a margin between the wholesale and retail price of gasoline in Nebraska of about 11 cents a gallon and, as governor, I wired the attorney general of the United States asking that immediate legal action be taken against the gasoline combination. I also wired the federal trade commission and at the same time I wired the general office of the Standard Oil company demanding an immediate reduction in the price of gasoline and notified them that I had called on the federal authorities to prosecute them for conspiracy in restraint of trade. I also stated that unless the Standard Oil company immediately reduced the price of gasoline to a reasonable figure that the state would feel it its duty to its citizens to establish sales agencies thruout the state. The following day the Standard Oil company reduced the price of gasoline in Nebraska 6 cents a gallon. However, during the year 1924, the price of gasoline was gradually advanced until it became intolerable. A demand was again made that the price be reduced or the state would undertake to establish competition in the retailing of gasoline. This threat not meeting a ready response, a public filling station for gasoline was established at the material yards of the public works department in the city of Lincoln. The retail price of gasoline was from 19 to 21 cents a gallon, and upon opening the state filling station the retail price was fixed by the state at 15 cents. After opening the one station it was announced that unless there was a reduction in the price of gasoline thruout the state to a reasonable figure the state would undertake to establish local filling stations thruout Nebraska. Immediate reduction by the private dealers of one cent a gallon followed, a few days later another 2 cents reduction was made and other reductions followed until the price thruout Nebraska was based on the price fixed by the state. As the wholesale price of gasoline was further reduced the state price was fixed at 12 cents and this became the basic price thruout the state and it was not changed until the morning of November 5, 1924. The National Petroleum association at a convention held recently in Ohio passed a resolution, which was broadcast thruout the press associations and published in the daily newspapers, censuring the governor of Nebraska, for engaging in the gasoline business and establishing a retail market for gasoline by the state. The state's retail filling station has been self-supporting and in addition to bringing about a saving to the people of Nebraska of about $9,000,000 a year, it has produced a net profit, during the short time it has been in operation, of about $2,500 to the state. I recommend that the state continue the filling station, and that the legislature enact a statute that will give the state specific authority when necessary to buy and sell gasoline and coal or any fuel used for warmth or for generating heat or power. The fact that the state possessed such authority would, in itself, prevent excessive prices being charged by private producers or dealers in these necessities of life, health comfort and business development.

Budget for 1925-27.

The budget I have just submitted contains suggested amounts necessary to cover the cost of the state's activities for the biennium of 1924-27, which, if the legislature embody into the appropriation bills of this session, will make another large reduction in the cost of the state government without, in my judgment, handicapping, injuring or crippling any necessary state activity or lowering the high state of efficiency by which the state's work has been carried on during the past two years. The total amount of appropriations as suggested in my budget for the coming biennium is $17,222,101.66.

In determining the amounts in the budget for the various spending agencies, it is assumed, and I believe that my assumption is correct, that all departments of the state government, executive, judicial, legislative, educational, and administrative, have had ample funds during the past two years to conduct their respective departments successfully, and to bring the service of the state to as high, if not a higher state of efficiency than any preceding biennium. I have, therefore, in making up the budget, used in a great many instances, the amounts that were appropriated two years ago for the same activities. In other instances, where the amount appropriated was in excess of the present governor's recommendations two years ago, his recommendations at that time have been incorporated and in some instances, I have arrived at the amount of the suggested appropriation by taking the appropriation made for that activity two years ago, ascertaining the amount of the appropriation which had been consumed in the first seventeen months of the present biennium, and after allowing a like amount for each of the seven remaining months of the biennium, have deducted from the budget item where the amount seemed to be in excess of the needs for that activity during the present biennium.

The state's activities directly under the governor and grouped largely under what was known as the "code system" have been reorganized until but little of the former code organization remains. This was partly done by the last legislature failing to appropriate money for salaries of the heads of the code departments but was largely brought about by the chief executive of the past two years who has endeavored to dispense with all of the unnecessary or duplicated activities that the code law would permit and to remove from the pay roll all unnecessary employes.

In making up the budget for the activities directly under the governor I have assumed that the people, acting thru the legislature, would take whatever legislative action was necessary to eliminate any and all duplications in the administrative and educational activities of the government. I have therefore made up a budget covering certain activities with the thought in mind that these duplications and overlappings would be abolished, as both the major political parties in the state, thru their state platforms, have promised the people they would do.

Duplications in Departments.

No provision for the finance department has been made because the code law should be immediately repealed and the finance department be handled by the state auditor, or the state auditor's work should be handled by the finance department. They are a duplication of each other and serve no good purpose. This consolidation would make a saving to the taxpayers of $25,000.

The agricultural department should be abolished. An inspection department including all necessary state inspections should be established. These inspections should then be arranged for at their source, or at the place the shipments enter the state, and in this manner save hundreds of thousands of dollars a biennium, and a more efficient department could be conducted with less than half of the present force employed in the agricultural department, altho that department is operating now with a greatly reduced force from that of two years ago.

In my judgment the seed analysis department should be transferred to the State Agricultural College. We have, during the past two years, abolished from the agricultural department the market news and publicity department, the radio outfit—all of which were duplications of service paid for by the people thru other agencies, and was money worse than wasted. The state bureau of markets is of no value as it is being duplicated by the Agricultural College and the Federal authorities.

The retiring governor recommends that the public welfare department, as it originally existed under the code, be abolished, which can only be done by statute; and that the child welfare and child hygiene departments be transferred to the state superintendent, where this work is being handled largely in other states, and where such work will not be duplicated, as now, by the welfare department of the state, by the university extension work, and also in the state superintendent's office. By concentrating this work in one department, and then properly financing it, the service to the state would be greatly enhanced and the annoyance and expense to the public would be greatly reduced.

A recommendation is made that the athletic department should be consolidated with the game and fish department under the game warden where it has been handled under the present administration, the same as in some other states.

It appears that the Sheppard-Towner act, which is known as the maternity measure, could better be operated under the extension department of the university rather than be more or less duplicated as at present.

The inspection department of the fire prevention department should, in my judgment, be transferred to the suggested department of inspection. The investigation department of the division of fire prevention is unnecessary, as the fire underwriters supply experts, on demand, to investigate questionable fires.

Abolish Blue Sky Department

The operation of the division of the Bureau of Securities during the past two years under the governor's responsibility firmly convinces me that that activity should be abolished, and that legislation be substituted which would hold the officers of a company or corporation financially and criminally responsible for any misrepresentations by their agents of corporation stock or bonds sold within the confines of Nebraska.

Independent State Banking Department

The state banking department is of such size and importance that, in my judgment, it requires an experienced superintendent who would devote his entire time to the work, to be appointed by the governor and directly responsible only to him. The guarantee of bank deposits has been of inestimable value to the people of Nebraska, and care should be exercised, and every attempted revision of the banking law scrutinized, to see that the guarantee of deposits law is not modified or weakened. The operation and administration of that law, which was intended exclusively for the benefit and protection of the depositors in state banks, should be kept directly in the hands and under the supervision and responsibility of the governor.

Create Department of Insurance.

The insurance business has grown to such large proportions that it should also be a separate department with a supervisory head appointed by, and responsible to, the governor, and not be a sub-division of some other department with scattered and diffused authority that prevents it from having the immediate care and attention of a supervisory head who is capable of giving it the attention that its importance deserves.

The division of hail insurance should be strengthened so as to give more ample protection to those whose crops are destroyed by hail.

Eliminate Duplication of Library Work.

No provision has been made in the budget for the legislative reference bureau or the library commission. These activities are duplications of similar work and therefore prevent efficient service and at the same time add unnecessary expense and burden the pay roll with unnecessary employes. The state university library extension department can supply all reference books that are now supplied by both the university and the legislative reference bureau and the attorney general's office can draft the bills for the legislature by adding an assistant or two to his staff during the time the legislature is in session. The state library, the university library, the legislative reference bureau, the library commission and the state historical society are all building up libraries that are more or less duplicated. These five state libraries that the taxpayers are now maintaining in the city of Lincoln could be consolidated and handled by the state university library and the state library at the state house.

Normal Work Triplicated.

The training for teachers for public schools is carried on in three different departments of our educational system of the state, viz., the university, normal schools and high schools, which is a triplication of effort, causes an increase in taxes and probably lessens the effectiveness of the effort of each of these schools. I suggest that the legislature consider the possibility of centralizing the state's effort in training young men and women as teachers for the schools of the state and that sufficient funds then be provided to properly conduct the training of teachers.

Test Farmers Wheat Free.

I recommend that the state agricultural college establish and maintain the necessary machinery or equipment to test the farmer's wheat, and ascertain free of cost the amount of gluten in each sample submitted by the farmer. This would add very little to the cost of service given by the state agricultural college but it would be worth thousands of dollars a year to the farmers.

Repeal Intangible Tax Law.

The so-called intangible tax law that was enacted four years ago which provides that the intangible property such as stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, etc., shall be assessed at one-fourth their face value while tangible property such as farms, homes, merchandise, etc., should be assessed at their full value is unfair, unjust and un-American in that it enables those best able to pay taxes for the support of the government, to transfer three-fourths of their taxes onto those who are already overburdened. This law should, in my judgment, be repealed and all classes of property and all classes of people should pay according to what property they have, and abolish the system of transferring the taxes from the rich to the poor which has developed thru the so-called intangible tax law.

Government Development of Water Power.

I recommend that a measure be enacted so that the water power of the state which is owned by the people can be retained as their heritage and be developed under government control by municipal, county or district units of the government.

Deficit in Public Works Department.

I desire to call the attention of your honorable body to conditions that were created and existed in the department of public works during the years of 1919-20-21-22, prior and up to the time that I came into office. There was found to be a deficit in the road department two years ago. This deficit had been accumulating for three years prior to that time and was called to the attention of the legislature at its session two years ago. The legislature appointed a joint committee of the senate and house to investigate the deficit which was officially reported by the governor, and the joint committee reported that there was no deficit in the road department and that there would be a cash balance in the road fund of the former administration after all claims against it were paid. This joint committee's report was adopted by both branches of the legislature. Since that time it has been determined by the supreme court that there was a deficit in the road department, in the case taken to the supreme court wherein the contractors attempted to mandamus the state auditor to pay for road work done on contracts let by the state for the biennium of 1919-20 and of 1921-22. The supreme court upheld the contention of the governor that there was a deficit in the road fund, and that contracts let for road work in a prior biennium could not be paid from current funds in the following biennium and that the only way that this road deficit or these unpaid claims of road contracts could be liquidated would be thru a deficiency appropriation at the next session of the legislature. While the exact amount of the deficit in the road department of two years ago can not be definitely determined at this time, the department of public works has fixed the amount as definitely as they could on December 31st, 1924 at $346,048.05. I recommend that a deficiency appropriation be made to pay the claims against the state road department that were contracted for prior to January 4, 1923.

Deficit in Bridge Fund.

There is found to be a deficit in the state aid bridge fund for the biennium preceding my administration. It appears that after the bridge appropriation for the former biennium was exhausted the heads of the public works department authorized the officials of thirteen different counties to build and repair bridges on promises that the state would pay its share of the cost. The total amount due these various counties is $128,567.47. This represents a deficit that can only be paid by a deficiency appropriation of the legislature and I recommend that such an appropriation be made and that said deficit in the bridge fund for the former biennium be liquidated. The total deficit in the road and bridge fund of the former administration is found to be about $474,615.52.

Irregularities in Road Department.

The uncertainty as to the exact amount of the deficiency in the road department under the former administration is on account of irregularities found to exist in that department thru an investigation made by the federal authorities and the present retiring governor during the past year. These irregularities consist of a falsification of the records in the public works department to show a large increase in the yardage of dirt moved over the yardage of dirt actually moved. This has resulted in the payment, by the state, of large sums of money to road contractors in excess of the amount due them for the service rendered. The records were also falsified so that the federal government was required to pay the state, which in turn went to the contractor, sums of money for work in excess of what had been rendered by the contractor. The federal government has made a demand upon the state for the return of the money paid to the state on two road projects which was secured by a falsification of the records in the public works department of Nebraska, by increasing the number of yards of earth moved in excess of the amount of dirt actually handled by the contractor. The federal government also discovered additional falsifications on various road projects but did so in time to refuse payment. The records in the public works department show that these amounts in excess of the actual service rendered were paid out to road contractors on orders and approval of those in charge of the public works department prior to January 1923. This investigation also has shown that classification of material moved were changed by the former state engineer's department without consent or advance approval of the federal government, and in violation of law and that large sums of money were paid out by the state prior to January 4, 1923, and that the result of this change in classification on one or more projects has resulted in the payment to contractors of upwards of $100,000.00 by the state in excess of the contract agreement entered into by the federal and state government with the contractors at the time the contract was let.

I have laid before the attorney general of this state the result of the investigation made by the federal government and the present retiring governor, together with copies of the records in the public works departments covering the various projects where falsification of the records has been found and also supplied copies of affidavits showing when and how falsifications were made, and have supplied the attorney general with copies of results of investigations by county officials of Nebraska covering reclassification of materials by the former heads of the public works department of Nebraska which has resulted in the loss of large sums of money to the taxpayers of the state. I have recommended to the attorney general that he take appropriate action to punish the guilty and to recover the large sums of money wrongfully paid out by the state. I recommend a deficiency appropriation by the legislature to reimburse the federal government for the sums paid to the state in excess of the amounts actually due, whenever, in the judgment of the attorney general, the ends of justice will not be impaired by supplying the legislature with the necessary data on which the federal government asks for the return of money paid to the state thru misrepresentation.

Progress in Road Development.

Great progress has been made in road development in Nebraska during the past two years and especially during 1924. A delay in letting road contracts occurred in the summer of 1923 because of the mandamus proceedings in the supreme court by the road contractors in an effort to have the appropriation of this biennium for road purposes used to pay the amounts claimed by road contractors for contracts let during the preceding biennium. However, more federal aid road work has been done in Nebraska during 1924 than for any preceding year and almost three times as many miles of road were graveled in 1924 than for all of the preceding years combined.

Opposes Increase in Taxes, Gasoline or Otherwise.

A tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline for road building purposes has been suggested by various organizations. There is no question in my mind but that the people of Nebraska at this time are opposed to any increase in their tax burdens, whether it be thru a tax on gasoline or thru any other plan. If a tax is to be levied on gasoline, it must be paid by the consumer and if the consumer is to have an increased burden of two cents a gallon on gasoline, the same consumer should receive a reduction of an equal amount on the other taxes that he is now paying. In my judgment there is no need, necessity or defense of any increase in the amount of taxes that are being collected at the present time for conducting the state's business for the coming two years.

The Child Labor Constitutional Amendment.

I submit herewith the proposed amendment to the federal constitution relating to child labor. This amendment was sent to the chief executive of Nebraska by the federal secretary of state in the manner prescribed for the submission to the various state legislatures for approval or rejection. I suggest that your honorable body give this proposed amendment the careful consideration which its importance merits. If the proposed amendment is intended to enable federal authorities to protect children of tender age from working in factories, mills and industrial plants, I believe that this amendment has merit and if adopted would serve a worthy purpose. If, however, it is the intention of the amendment to take from the parents the control of their own children, until after they are eighteen years of age, so that a child would not be permitted to have the benefit of outdoor life on the farm, and be given the constitutional development and educational training that the children of the farmers are now receiving in assisting their parents in doing the chores and the light farm work, it would be unfair to the children, inhuman to the parents and would destroy the home life for both parent and child. It might be well to submit the child labor amendment to a referendum vote of the people.

Deposit Fees in General Fund.

I would recommend that all funds of whatsoever character whether they be from federal aid, interest on monies invested, fees collected for service by the state in the form of inspections, examinations of protection, and all spending agencies receiving state aid thru appropriations of state money or state funds from any other source should, by law, be required to deposit all such receipts in the general fund with the state treasurer, and that no money should be paid out by any spending agency of the state, or to which the state contributes, without being specifically appropriated by the legislature for each activity, and then only thru the regular voucher system of the state where the auditor, secretary of state and the state treasurer approve same. I also recommend that all spending agencies receiving state aid in any form or manner should be examined under the authority of the state auditor or state finance department.

Opposes Special Mill Levies.

There has been [illegible] suggestion in the press and in communications from different organizations for a tax levy of so many mills for a building fund for various spending agencies. As a general [illegible] proposition [illegible] the [illegible] the supporters of [illegible] would be [illegible] [illegible] the taxpayers but it enables the spending agency to collect an increasing amount of funds which, in turn, encourages excessive expenditures without the knowledge or consent of those who are taxed to provide the funds.

Board of Mediation.

The statute providing for a board of mediation and conciliation, to serve in disputes between capital and labor before the strike or lockout stage has been reached, was inadvertently repealed a few years ago. However, the appropriation of $1,000 made to defray the expenses of such a board was provided by the legislature four years ago and also two years ago. A bill of this kind was recommended by the governor two years ago and introduced in the legislature but did not become a law, altho the legislature indicated its intention to enact the law as an appropriation was made for the expense of such a board. I recommend that this statute, which was inadvertently repealed, be reenacted so that this machinery of investigation and arbitration can be utilized not only in the interest of capital and labor but for the protection of the general public.

Workmen's Compensation Fund.

The employes of the state of Nebraska who are injured in line of duty and who are entitled to workmen's compensation under the employers liability provision of the statutes are unable to draw any compensation from the state on account of no specific appropriation having been made by the legislature for that purpose. I recommend that in making appropriations for salaries and wages of the various employes of the state who would come under the workmen's compensation law that a small appropriation be added for this specific purpose, and that the spending agency be authorized to make payments to injured employes whose awards are fixed by the state labor commissioner or by the courts.

Attorney General Should Be Appointed.

There is no provision by statute authorizing the chief executive of the state to provide himself with a counselor and no money has been appropriated for that purpose. I believe that the legal department of the state should be operated directly under the authority of the governor and that the attorney general or legal advisor of the governor should be appointed by the governor. I therefore recommend that the legislature submit an amendment to the constitution to be voted on by the people at the next general election, providing for the appointment by the governor of the attorney general instead of electing him as a constitutional officer.

Arbor Lodge.

During the past two years a magnificent contribution has been made to the state. Mr. Joy Morton has presented to the state of Nebrask the home place at Nebraska City, together with Morton park comprising about seventy acres. This property, valued at $200,000.00, was the home of Joy Morton's father, J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor day and former secretary of the United States department of agriculture. The state has formally accepted the mansion and grounds known as "Arbor Lodge," and has agreed to maintain the property as a state park. The state park board has taken charge of the beautiful home and grounds and "Arbor Lodge" is being visited by thousands of people yearly who testify to the state's appreciation of the generous gift of Joy Morton, and the opportunity it has given the state to perpetuate "Arbor Lodge", in memory of the late J. Sterling Morton.

Law Enforcement

The passage of the law, by the legislature two years ago, giving the governor authority to remove county and city law enforcement officers for failure to enforce the prohibition law has added to the efficiency of local law enforcement officers and given the chief state deputy law enforcement officer, who is directly under the governor, the cooperation that he needed to make law enforcement effective. The law enforcement department has operated so satisfactorily to the public, both in the enforcement of liquor laws and the law against automobile theft, that the complaints against the violation of these laws have been greatly reduced and there has been practically no complaint as to the manner in which the state law enforcement department has operated. In addition to enforcing the liquor law and the law against theft of automobiles, the state law enforcement department has rendered great assistance to the various county officials and the public in general in detecting and prosecuting various crimes such as bank robberies and stealing large quantities of merchandise from various stores in different parts of the state.

A summary of the results of the efforts of the state law enforcement department, together with federal prohibition officers and county authorities for the years 1923 and 1924, is as follows.

Total cases pending......444
Total jail sentences.....786
Total amount fines paid..	$350,208.17
Number cars confiscated.135
Estimated value of cars..	20,250.00
Total amount of fines paid for liquor violations for the years 1923-24	$370,458.17

Summary of the number of cars stolen in the state for the years 1923-24, and the number of cars recovered as reported by the chief deputy law enforcement officer is as follows:

Total number of cars stolen........	1653
Total number of cars recovered.....	1858

It will be observed that more cars have been apprehended by the law enforcement officers of Nebraska, which include the state, county and city law enforcement officers, than were stolen in the state. This makes an especially good showing for the efficiency of the state law enforcement officers.

The appropriation for the law enforcement department for this biennium was $60,000 as compared with $75,000 for the preceding biennium. I have made a budget recommendation for this department of $60,000 for the coming biennium.

Require Trial Judge to Fix Reasonable Minimum Sentence.

As chief executive of the state I desire to call the attention of the legislature to the increase of crime, especially crimes of violence or major offences. The trial judges in passing sentence upon criminals usually give the prisoners from one to twenty years and immediately upon the expiration of the one year, including good behaviour which reduces the sentence to ten months, the prisoner, his friends or attorneys besiege the board of pardons and paroles for a hearing on the question of his parole. Although the trial judge, under the law, could fix a reasonable definite sentence the custom of fixing the minimum at one year regardless of what a reasonable minimum sentence for certain crimes should be is unfair to the pardon board which is composed of three constitutional officers. I therefore recommend a statute requiring trial judges to fix a reasonable minimum as well as maximum sentence. This, I believe, will lessen the number of crimes committed in the state of Nebraska and will therefore reduce the number of prisoners and the need for increasing penitentiary room and will lessen the work of the state officers who compose the pardon board.

Trial Judge to Discuss Evidence.

In jury cases, in order to clarify the testimony and assist the jury in arriving at a just decision, I believe that the jury should have the benefit of the trial judge's opinion as to the evidence. I therefore suggest an amendment to the statutes, which will enable trial judges in Nebraska to discuss the evidence for the enlightment of the jury as the federal judges are permitted to do under federal rules in jury cases.

Supreme Court Commission.

The supreme court, owing to the congestion of the docket, should have relief for at least two years and as the state bar association has recommended that aid be given the supreme court in the form of a commission as was done by statute in 1911 I suggest that your honorable body favorably consider the recommendation.

Pardons and Paroles.

The statutes provide that the governor shall submit to the legislature a report of the activities of the state board of pardons and paroles including a list of all pardons, commutations, paroles and respites, the names of the prisoners, the reasons why the board extended clemency and copy of dissenting opinions. As no appropriation was made for the publication of a report of this kind I am submitting with this message a typewritten report by the state chief probation officer to the board of pardons and paroles which [illegible] includes all information that the law requires except the opinions of the board giving the reasons for each separate [illegible] [illegible] Therefore there are no [illegible] submitted.

The New Capitol.

The first [illegible] of the new capitol [illegible] [illegible] pleted. Part of the [illegible] ters of the state and practically all of the administrative officers and employes of the state are housed in their permanent quarters in the new capitol. Nebraska's new state capitol, as designed by the architect, Mr. Goodhue, and being built on plans laid down by him, is producing a substantial and magnificent building. The contract for the foundation and the first section was entered into by the former governor and capitol commission, and the excavation for the basement and the basement walls and the foundation were laid before the present retiring governor took up his official duties as chairman of the capitol commission. During the past two years the first construction or first section of the building has been completed, and the greater portion of the building has been accepted from the capitol commission by the governor on behalf of the state, and is now occupied by the governor and all the departments directly under the governor's control.

The architect, Mr. Goodhue, passed away during the past two years but the general plans and specifications were so near completion that the capitol commission was able to enter into very satisfactory arrangements with the Goodhue business organization to complete the detailed specifications of the Goodhue architectural and building plans, and to superintend the construction and equipment of the building.

The total amount of moneys paid out by the capitol commission from the time the first work on the plans commenced, to December 16, 1924, including payments to the general contractors and stone contractors authorized on that date, aggregate $2,732,160.34. There is still due on outstanding contracts for material and labor $284,655.93. The total amount which the commission has expended or which it is under obligation to spend is, therefore, $3,016,816.77. The capitol commission estimates that four years will be required to complete the building in accordance with the original plans and that the work still to be done—in addition to the existing uncompleted contracts, will cost approximately $4,923,000. This would bring the total cost of the new capitol to $7,940,000.

I am advised by the capitol commission that the increase in the cost of the capitol over the original sum estimated and provided for by the legislature, viz., $5,000,000, was due to the fact that after the original size of the building had been agreed upon the capitol commission found, upon visiting other capitol buildings constructed in recent years, that the size of the buildings had been underestimated to meet the growth of the state activities, and that the Nebraska capitol commission increased the dimensions of Nebraska's capitol from 7,500,000 cubic feet to 9,100,000 cubic feet. My service as chairman of the capitol commission, during the past two years, has led me to believe that the size as now planned could not be reduced without underestimating the proper anticipated growth and development of the state's activities and the need for housing space. I believe that the taxpayers of Nebraska are getting the worth of their money for each dollar spent in the construction of the new capitol, and that when it is finished, if the plans are carried out and the building completed along the strict business lines and care with which it has been constructed thus far, Nebraska will have the best capitol building in the United States and it will have been built for the lowest cost per cubic foot of any public building of its character erected in the nation.

The tax levy now being collected will complete the six year levy made for the new capitol building purposes, and will create a fund of about $5,300,000. About $3,000,000 of this money has already been expended and the other two million and a third is in the hands of the state treasurer, or the bulk of it is and the remainder is being collected with the 1924 taxes. The capitol commission, for the purpose of completing the building on the broad, substantial and economically beautiful plans as prepared by Mr. Goodhue, recommends that the special tax levy for the new capitol building purposes be extended to raise the estimated cost of $7,940,000. The proceeds from this levy will, under the present plans, complete the building as originally intended including a heating plant at an estimated cost of $300,000 and $500,000 for furnishing and decorating the building, and landscaping the grounds, and all other expense in connection with the construction, equipment and completion of the new capitol and grounds. The proceeds from the six year tax levy for the new capitol building purpose have already been appropriated and will be contracted against for the second section or second construction by the end of the biennium and therefore will not need to be reappropriated by this session of the legislature. However, the additional contracts which will have to be entered into by the capitol commission before another session of the legislature, will probably require an additional appropriation out of the funds to be provided from the extension tax levy of three or fur hundred thousand dollars. In order to continue the construction of the new capitol and have the second construction, which will house the House of Representatives, ready for occupancy by the time the legislature meets in January 1927, it will be necessary for contracts to be let for the second section or second construction in the very immediate future, and the old building will have to be torn away immediately upon the adjournment of the present legislative session. It is important, therefore, that the recommendations and the needs of the capitol commission be given the earliest possible consideration by your honorable body, and I recommend that the plans of the commission, as outlined above, receive your early and favorable consideration.

In Conclusion.

I could not lay aside my official duties as governor without commending those officials and employes who have so honestly, loyally and efficiently labored during the past two years as public servants to give to the state the high character of government and service that the people of Nebraska have enjoyed. It is with pride that I point to the fact that no person appointed by me or serving under me, as governor, during my term has been criticized by the press or privately criticized, as far as I know, either as to their qualifications for the position they hold or for the manner in which they have discharged their respective public duties. I am deeply indebted to them for the cooperation they have given me and thank them for the state for the splendid service they have given Nebraska.

The very cordial relations which have existed between the elective constitutional officials of the state during this administration and the non-partisan and business-like manner in which they have cooperated in discharging their official duties, is gratefully appreciated by the retiring governor. The governor is a member of the following state boards and commissions, viz., Board of Pardons and Paroles, State Board of Equalization, Board of Educational Lands and Funds, also the Capitol Commission. The elective state executive officers constitute these boards and altho the personnel is not all of one political party every official matter coming before each of these boards and commission during this administration has been determined satisfactorily to each member, and received the unanimous vote on each question by every member of each of these board and commission.

The Almighty has blessed the people of Nebraska during the past year with a healthful climate, good crops and a profitable return from their labors. We must, however, bear in mind the unprofitable years our people have passed thru in considering the many demands which will be made for financial support. Your honorable body, I feel sure will carefully and conscientiously determine the many and important matters brought before you. In bringing to a close my work as the chief executive of the great State of Nebraska, permit me to express to the members of the Forty-third Session of the Nebraska Legislature and to His Excellency the incoming governor my most sincere good wishes for a happy and prosperous year to each of you and a successful completion of your respective official duties.

MIRACLE SAVES PASSENGERS

Georgia Train Runs Into Split Rail Near Stone Mountain.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8.—Scores of passengers had miraculous escapes when the Georgia railroad's train No. 7 ran into a split rail one mile from Stone Mountain, near here and was wrecked.

Five coaches piled in a heap but none of the passengers was seriously injured.

R. L. Palmer, veteran engineer, who stuck to his post and jammed on the airbrakes when disaster seemed certain, said today that it was a miracle that many passengers were not killed.

Different Effects of Constipation

Whether to Banish Pimples or to Get Rid of Poisoning Bowel Impactions There's Nothing Equal to Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Your effort to get rid of constipation must contemplate more than a violent purging of the bowels. Such an effort removes neither cause nor effect of the condition. Your best course is to take two to four Stuart's Calcium Wafers and let them operate throughout the intestinal tract. Thus they will get into the blood, the calcium sulphide will stimulate secretions to overcome the poisons that show up in the skin. It will influence liver secretions to provide the substance that overcomes other poisons in the intestines.

Thus you not only empty the lower bowel but you break up accumulations higher up, stimulate muscular action all along the line, stop your headaches by getting poisons out of the blood and your skin improves so noticeably as to be positive evidence of the thorough action of these remarkable Calcium Wafers. Be sure to get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Keep using them for ten days and you will then realize that constipation, while only a condition in itself, was the cause of about all the distresses you experienced from month to month.

Send your name and address to F. A. Stuart Co., 655 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., and a convincing free sample package of these wafers will be sent to you by return mail.

Thousands Of Women Are Now Taking This Easily Absorbed Iron

Worn-out Housewife Tells How She Quickly Regained Her Health and Strength

"Only a short two weeks ago I was tired, nervous and all-out from the drain on my nerves and strength of household drudgery, that I thought I could not keep up another day.

"A short two weeks' treatment of the nerve form of easily absorbed iron has given me a marvelous increase in health, strength and energy. Now I can do my whole house without help, and I do not have to sit at home in the evening 'all-in,' sick and nervous."

"The above is typical-hypothetical case," said a well-known physician, formerly of Bellevue Hospital (Out-Door Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, recently. "You cannot be well and strong and full of vigor, force and power unless your blood is rich in iron. It is your red blood that enables you to resist and overcome disease and that nourishes every organ in your body. Without iron your blood becomes thin, pale and watery. Poor blood cannot nourish your vital organs and as a result you may have pains in your heart or kidneys, indigestion, headaches, and feel all 'run-down' and tired out."

When your blood lacks iron, do not waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, but directly enrich your blood with the newer form of iron sold by all druggists under the name of Nuxated Iron, which is like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and is in a form easily assimilated by your blood.

Get a bottle of Nuxated Iron today. Take it for two weeks and if you have not, like thousands of others, obtained most surprising health, strength and energy, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. Any druggist will sell you Nuxated Iron with this "satisfaction or money back" guarantee.

"I think I've got just about the happiest job in the world. All I do is read letters like the one below—and make Peterson's Ointment. Is it any wonder I am cheerful all day long?"

"I had four large ulcer sores as big as a half dollar for 2 years and Peterson's Ointment has healed them all and I am very glad to let anyone know about your Ointment. From a true friend. My address is 20 Walnut Street, West Haven, Conn. George Hemstalk."

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

NEGRO PREVENTS A JAIL DELIVERY

Oscar Hudspeth, Colored, Charged With First Degree Murder, Warns Officers—Five in the Plot.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Jan. 7.—Oscar Hudspeth negro awaiting trial for first degree murder, averted a wholesale jail delivery at the Richardson county jail Tuesday night it was revealed this noon by Deputy Sheriff Al Smith. Motioning Smith over to his corner when the deputy brought the prisoners' meals at 7 o'clock Hudspeth whispered that the lock of the cage in which he and five others were confined had been broken off by one of the prisoners with a gas pipe. Another minute and all of the prisoners would have been out of the cage with only the outer door barring their liberty.

It has been the plan Hudspeth told Smith to lie in wait for the deputy when he came with the eevning meal, and then attack him with gas pipe, used by the prisoners as a poker. According to Hudspeth, Earl Hunt, serving a thirty-day sentence for theft of an overcoat who was outside of the cage, was the man who broke the lock.

Two others were in the cell outside of the cage but were not in on the plot, Smith said. Investigation revealed that the jail breaking plot was hatched by Fred Brown, Feno Cuilla and Joe Sylvesto awaiting trial for highway robbery.

Hudspeth was last week bound over to the district court on first degree murder charge for the slaying of Lawrence Nelson another negro, in a quarrel over a woman. Five men have been named in the plot and they will probably be given a bread and water ration for awhile, Smith said.

CONFESSION RULED OUT

Ray Eaton's Statement Given to Postal Inspectors Not Allowed as Evidence.

The purported confession made by Ray E. Eaton and given to Postal Inspectors Range and Roland was not admitted in evidence at Mr. Eaton's trial on a charge of mail theft, Judge Munger ruling against it just after the defense was opened late Wednesday.

Mr. Eaton is charged with abstracting from the mail a decoy letter addressed to a Cincinnati woman and taking money from it, last July 9. Some of the marked money from the letter was found in his pockets that night, and he says it was part of a handful given him by one "Red" Smith at a time when he was very busy. Mr. Eaton says he was in the habit of holding stakes for the postal and railroad employes at the Burlington station when they made up pools on baseball scores.

The two inspectors and Otto Mark, a railway mail clerk, testified for the government, as did Otto Bergstrasser, mail sorter at the Burlington to whom Mr. Eaton loaned a $5 bill the day he was arrested. A marked $5 bill and a marked quarter were not found in Mr. Eaton's possession with the rest of the money from the decoy letter.

Mr. Eaton took the stand in his own defense Wednesday afternoon, and began describing his injuries in accidents while in the service, and his physical condition on July 9. When his attorneys explained that they expected to show that he signed the statement in order to be able to get food and rest, Judge Munger simplified the proceedings by announcing that he had already made up his mind to rule out the confession.

REALTORS' ANNUAL FEED

Members of Lincoln Real Estate Board and Wives Attend Banquet Wednesday.

More than one hundred and fifty members of the Lincoln Real Estate board, associate members and their wives attended their annual banquet at the Grand hotel Wednesday evening. In addition to the banquet and entertainment features of the evening R. A. Bickford, retiring president of the organization, presented the gavel to his successor, L. F. Farrell, who will serve for the coming year.

In his speech of acceptance, Mr. Farrell reviewed briefly the history of the board since its organization five years ago with Harvey Rathbone as its first president. Soon after its beginning the board was affiliated with the national association of real estate boards. Mr. Farrell expressed appreciation of the manner in which the members have co-operated and the air of goodfellowship that has prevailed since the origin of the realtors group.

Leo Bozell, Omaha realtor, told those assembled of the activities of the Omaha board during the past year and Newton Wesley Gaines spoke on the views of the real estate business seen by one outside the business. Frank D Tomson, of the city planning subdivision of the chamber of commerce, gave a short address on the possibilities of Lincoln and its realtors. E C Folsom acted as toastmaster for the evening.

Entertainment was furnished by a jazz orchestra, several readings and a vocal solo with a comedy skit.

Six thorobred Holstein yearlings were stolen from the state reformatory for women at York, Neb., according to a report received from authorities there by State Sheriff Carroll Wednesday evening. One of the most intense of the mystery plays, "The Cat and the Canary," came back after nearly a year of absence and lifted the hair of a top heavy audience at the Orpheum on Wednesday night with much vigor. When it was here before it made a proper impression, but not more so than on this visit. The ghostly scenes were watched with fascinated horror, and after every creepy episode gasping indrawn breaths testified to the general public's agitation. In spite of the ghastliness and terror a pleasant time was had by all. Those who felt most like shrieking and those who actually did yell in terror were ready to admit after it was all over that it was a pleasant experience after all. Everybody likes thrills, and "The Cat" brings them in abundance. John Willard is the author of this head liner among the blood curdlers.

RECORD CROWD AT FAMILY FUN FEED

Banquet and Entertainment for Farmers Attracts Throng of 700, Including Many Lawmakers.

Seven hundred persons, mostly farmers and their wives beside many members of the forty-third legislature, participated in the banquet and program which followed at the Farmers' Family Fun Feed held in the agricultural engineering building on the farm campus Wednesday evening.

Places for 582 persons which were laid in the largest wing in the building were sold out by noon Wednesday. Authorities believed that many more seats might have been sold had there been room.

Preceeding the program E. R. Danielson addressed the crowd in teams of regret that more space had not been available to accommodate the persons who were too late to obtain seats. He stated that a building on the agricultural campus which would house the great numbers who came to the place during organized agriculture week and at other gala occasions, was becoming a necessity. Several dozen solons occupied seats in the direct path of this plea.

A mock legislature session was the high spot in the program. "Andy Gump," Dr. Alford, as speaker of the house in the fifty-seventh session of the Nebraska legislature introduced the Governors O'Bryan and Mulligan played by Prof. J. O. Rankin and Elton Lux respectively. Kenneth Fouts, county agent, was introduced as the sergeant-at-arms.

EXTEND "MUNY RAILROAD"

Unloading Track South of Power Station Will Connect With Supply Yard.

Commissioner Schroeder's "municipal railroad" consisting of a single switch track bordering the site of the new water reservoir south of the A street power station, will be extended three hundred feet to connect with the material yard south of the reservoir site.

Tise for the new "branch line" have already been hauled out to the "right-of-way" and an order for rails, spikes and other necessities has been sent in. The additional block of track will be valuable in conserving time and effort in moving materials, Mr. Schroeder said. The whole "railroad," now about one block in length, was built last fall to facilitate unloading of materials for the new reservoir.

WOULD BE FASHION CENTER.

LONDON, Jan. 8—New York and Paris had better be looking to their laurels as magnets for the million-and-one women who aspire to be the best-dressed woman in the world. One of Britain's modest resolutions for the New Year is to make London leader of the world's fashions. It is proposed to form a joint company, with a capital of $500,000, to establish a model house here, on the lines of the Paris mode establishments. Already $200,000 has been offered. The chief promoters are the Bradford chamber of commerce, the Spinners' federation, the Woolen and Worsted Trades' federation, the British Merchants' association and the British Silk association.

RABBITS WELL RECEIVED

Several Recipients Write Appreciation to Combined Charity Agencies Here.

Rabbits distributed free to two hundred families by Community chest agencies supplied even more tables than was at first estimated, according to letters received at community chest headquarters since the supply was given out.

"I had three rabbits given to me by one of the chest organizations," one of the letters said, "so I gave one to a family whose father is out of work."

"When the people who received the supply directly carried on the good work in that spirit, the rabbit distribution was well worth while," declared Louis Horne, secretary of the combined charities.

Sheriff Condit of Fremont succeeds Tom Carroll as law enforcement officer. Mr. Condit is conceded to be one of the most efficient county sheriffs in the state, and has had much to do with enforcement of the prohibition law and laws against automobile theft.

J. C. Jenkins of Neligh is to take the place of Chief Game Warden George C. Koster who has served under democratic and republican governors. Mr. Jenkins is the owner of a theater but has taken an active interest in game affairs, is well informed in regard to fish and game, is a hunter and a writer on hunting and game topics.

Jess V. Craig of Lincoln who will succeed W. J. McNichols as head of the bureau of securities, is an accountant of experience. He formerly lived at Wymore, served as deputy county clerk and was city superintendent of schools at Wymore. For several years he was an officer in the Nebraska national guard.

John C. Trouton of Omaha, who is to become state fire warden, takes a place that had been abolished by Governor Bryan. The place was formerly held by C. E. Hartford of Norfolk, but Governor Bryan decreed that L. B. Frye, secretary of the labor department, should serve as fire warden. This enabled Mr. Frye to draw a portion of his salary from the fire tax collected for support of the fire marshal's office, no salary as secretary having been appropriated by the legislature. L. J. Butcher, inspector for the fire warden, has performed most of the active work of a fire warden. Mr. Trouton served as inspector for the state fire warden several years ago and lived in Lincoln.

Governor McMullen has an official bond in the sum of $50,000, prepared by Elmer S. Hevelone of Beatrice, but he will not take the oath of office until Thursday afternoon at the inaugural ceremonies when other newly elected state officers are formally sworn in. He answered questions of newspaper reporters in regard to whether he intends to move his office out of the new capitol and reoccupy the old office in the old capitol and whether or not the Bryan gasoline retail filling station in Lincoln will be kept open by saying he had not given such matters a thought at this time.

RINGER TO FIGHT CASE

AT FIRST CONFESSED KILLING OF CARL MOORE.

Pleads Guilty at Preliminary But His Attorneys Indicate That a Fight Will Be Made.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 8.—Donald Ringer, Hastings youth, is said to have confessed that he alone killed Carl Moore, local automobile salesman, with a hammer last October, 16, because his chum, George Bender, wanted a new car to go to Texas and join his brother there in the garage business.

Ringer was returned to Hastings late yesterday afternoon by Chief of Police Branagan who took him into custody near Gulfport, Miss., during a long search for the two youths.

Bender, according to Ringer's statement, was the one who first suggested stealing the automobile and it was Bender who selected the spot near Roseland, Neb., where Moore's body was later found.

Upon Bender's failure to appear Ringer said he carried out the plot alone, first hitting Moore with his fist and later using the hammer After hiding Moore's body in the plum thicket he returned to Hastings in search of Bender and failing to find him. Ringer drove to Wilber, Neb., in Moore's car and there abandoned it.

Attorneys for Ringer today moved that yesterday's confession be expunged from the record and indicated that a defense would be made for the prisoner.

EXTENSION OF LIMITS

TELEPHONE COMPANY PROPOSES LOCALITIES RATES.

Seeks Commission Approval of Tariffs That Make Same Charge to Each Resident of Small Suburbs.

The Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph company made application Thursday to the state railway commission for authority to extend its zone limits, inside of which is carried the base rate for all subscribers to the Lincoln exchange a quarter of a mile beyond the city limits as the zone boundaries now stand. This takes in all sides of the city save that portion inside the limits and east of the Rock Island tracks, which is now served from the College View exchange and not from Lincoln.

In addition the company desires permission to establish localities rates. Heretofore the company has charged those outside the city on the base of mileage, $3.00 a year for each quarter mile on party and $5.00 a year for individual lines. This has resulted in a number of persons in the west and south suburbs paying different rates, depending on their distance from the city limits.

Under the localities rates submitted these will all pay the same added rate in each suburb, the nearest point to the zone boundary being the distance used. The commission is informed that this will result in the decrease of rates to those most distant, and the only increases will be in those instances where rates had been mistakenly quoted on the half mile basis instead of quarter mile.

Six localities are created. Those at West Lincoln and Lakeview will pay, in addition to the base rate, a monthly charge of 50 cents for party and 84 cents for individual service; at the state penitentiary and West A street localities, 25 and 42 cents, and that at the state hospital, 75 cents and $1.26. Belmont, the remaining locality, remains as now, as it is within the city limits.

BOY SAYS HE SLEW MOORE

DONALD RINGER PLEADS GUILTY TO MURDER.

Hastings Youth, Returned After Fifty-seven Days' Trailing Tells of Killing Auto Salesman.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 8.—Donald Ringer, nineteen, stood in county court last evening and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of first degree murder. He was held to the district court for trial.

The boy returned to Hastings today from Gulfport, Miss., where he had been arrested. He is accused of having slain Carl Moore, automobile salesman, October 16.

George Bender, charged with complicity in the slaying, has not been arrested as yet, altho a search is still in progress for him.

The arraignment of Ringer marked the closing of one of the most intense and thoro searches ever made by a Hastings official for a criminal suspect.

Carl Moore left the company show rooms where he was employed to see a prospective customer in Roseland, eighteen miles away. He did not return and a search failed to reveal what had happened to him. The automobile which he was driving was found abandoned the following day.

On November 1, a hunter found the badly decomposed body of the missing man in a clump of sumac His head had been crushed by a blow from a hammer. The hammer was found not far from the body and has been partially identified as one from the home of Harvey Beckner, step-father of Ringer.

Ringer and Bender, had been seen with Moore earlier in the day on which he disappeared. They disappeared after that.

Then started a man hunt which took Chief of Police Branagan thru Nebraska, Missouri, Illinois, Texas and Mississippi. For fifty-seven days the officer traveled about always just a little behind the boy whom he searched.

At Gulfport he overtook the fugitive and arrested him. But Bender was not with Ringer and the chief was forced to continue his search. That search was fruitless. Bender's trail was lost and could not be found.

County Attorney Crow appeared to personally conduct the preliminary hearing. He sat watching the boy while the clerk read the complaint, charging Ringer with having slain Moore with a blow from a hammer and naming Bender as his accessory.

Ringer is the son of Mrs. Harvey Breckner, of Hastings. He was sentenced to the reform school from Fairfield in 1917 and was paroled to his mother one year later.

Soon after his parole he went east and there he met Bender. The two became pals and when Ringer returned to Hastings Bender accomapnied him. They have been almost inseparable since their arrival here.

A special guard is being kept over Ringer as possible violence is feared. The time of his arrival here was kept secret, he was hurried from the train to the jail and from jail to the court room and Chief Branagan was accompanied from Clay county by Sheriff Harr.

Ringer's trial is expected to take place in a very short time.

CURSE OF MONEY GONE

Wife of Man Who Won $20,000 Contest to Name Magazine Reconciled With Him.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 8.—"The curse of that money is gone and now we can be happy together again," said Mrs. Dora Elwell today after she and her husband, who had won $20,000 in a contest to name a national magazine, had staged a reconciliation.

The reconciliation followed dismissal of charges of neglecting his four minor children against Elwell brought by his wife.

"All except $900 of the prize money is gone and we can start again," said Elwell.

"I am going back to work," said Elwell. "I won't have the thought of that money on my mind. I love my wife and she's a good woman."

"Our troubles began after George won the $20,000," said Mrs. Elwell, "but now we can be happy."

PROTECTION WHAT THE FARMER NEEDS

Present System Puts Him at Disadvantage in Relation to Other Groups, Murphy Declares in Address.

"The farmer is the best loser and the gamest sport in the country," F. W. Murphy told the chamber of commerce luncheon crowd Thursday, "and he wouldn't mind being left at the end of the war with nothing but his two hands to work with—if others had the same fate. But as things are now constituted, he is left outside the American protective system that fosters every other group, and consequently he is at a great and constant disadvantage.

"The tariff is only part of this system. Other parts are hours and wages regulations, immigration laws, which I favor, the transportation act, the interstate commerce commission, the federal trade commission, and all such regulatory groups. Thru this system, labor industry and commerce are enabled to pass along the increased prices, and the farmer must stand them all, taking the extra money from his capital. That's the reason there are millions in farm mortgages plastered over the country, why the banks are full of farmers' paper that can't be taken up, why so many banks in agricultural state are failing.

"The world price regulates the price of grain, and it is to a mere coincidence that the present grain prices are due. All other groups in this country operate with no relation to similar groups in the rest of the world, and so the farmer is out of line—at an immense disadvantage. It won't do any good to damn the railroads, or labor, or anybody else, while this inequality exists. It will remain as long as the farmer is outside the protective system and everybody else inside."

Mr. Murphy is chairman of the executive committee of the American Council of Agriculture, and is a wheat grower in Minnesota. He is in Lincoln for the meetings of organized agriculture, and was scheduled to speak at the Agricultural college Thursday afternoon.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like "a vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poltice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.—Advertisement.

"THE GOLDEN BED"

THE SEASON'S GREATEST NOVEL OF MARRIAGE.

Produced as a Paramount picture by Cecil B. DeMille from a screen adaptation by Jeanie Macpherson.

BY WALLACE IRWIN

(Copyright.)

A servant, knocking on the door, reminded her that it was half past one and the Marquis had come. Oh well, she mused, let him wait, it's good for him.

It was a quarter of two when she got downstairs to find her father and Margaret and San Pilar waiting in the drawing room. Her fiance's air was so pleasant and his face so beaming that she congratulated herself on her strategy. She was much relieved, for Flora Lee always hated trouble beyond its lively dramatic stage. The pressure of his lips upon her fingers indicated complete surrender. She could scarcely believe that she had won so easily. Her father stood stiffly by his chair, and in Peg's face the tardy one caught a faint look of disapproval . . . the look that galled her spirit more and more.

"Late as usual," drawled Flora Lee. "But I hope I'm on time for cocktails."

"I beg your pardon, sir," said Garnett Peake with cheerless courtesy, addressing San Pilar, "will you have a cocktail?"

"No. Thank you so, much." They were poison to him.

"We're waiting for Mother, aren't we?" asked Flora Lee, somewhat nettled. She might have met Bunny at the Sycamore where she could order as she pleased.

"She's playing bridge at the Country club," explained Margaret, who assumed the responsibilities in Mrs. Garnett's absence.

With luncheon there was a bottle of the judge's famous sauterne from the depleted stock below; for like the Peake library, the Peake cellar was closing ranks for a last stand against an unconquerable foe. Flora Lee, who only valued a luxury when it was gone, shared the bottle with San Pilar. Margaret disliked wine at midday and Garnett was on another of Dr. Furniss' strange diets. The Marquis complimented the wine, a litle paronizingly Garnett must have thought, and his acknowledgment was as nearly curt as his breeding permitted.

Over her bouillon Margaret jested absent-mindedly, giving a corner of her mind to the engaged pair who were in high spirits, their conversation racing inanely. Not a word of last night's distressing scene. A flash in the pan, an incident forgotten. How blessed the power to forget like that! A flare, a scene and a hilarious reconciliation.

"Daddy," said Flora Lee, flashing mischief at her father, "after we're married I think I'll have to get a little toy blanket for Bunny and lead him round with a chain. He's so sweet and so ignorant. Do you know what he goes around calling us?"

"Something very polite, I dare say," ventured Garnett in his dry voice.

"Oh, no, it isn't. He calls us North Americans."

"I have a little connection with the Royal Geographical Society of Spain," said the Marquis. "And if they've given me the wrong impression, please correct me."

"I'll not correct you there," replied Garnett Peake with a faint attempt to smile.

"Well, I will," chimed Flora Lee.

"I believe that as I believe in my salvation," San Pilar assured her.

"That won't get you far. Oh, I beg your pardon. Bunny's such a good Romanist that he can get away with murder."

A sudden, warning look came into the Spaniard's blond face, but Flora Lee rippled on.

"He belongs to the Royal Geographical society, but I'll bet they haven't got to America in the book——"

"The Spainards got to America so soon before the others that perhaps they have forgotten some things," suggested the Marquis with a twinkle toward the glum head of the house.

"Yes. Christopher Columbus bumped into Cuba and thought he was in China. I could have told him better than that."

"Where on earth did you pick up all that information?" asked Margaret. "I've lived with you all these years and never had the remotest suspicion——"

"At Miss Martincastle's school," her sister cut in. "On page sixty-four of that rusty old History of America. Don't you remember that book? It was just the right size to tie a shoe-lace to and drop down the hot-air pipe as a signal to Solomon when we wanted——"

"We're a studious family," remarked Garnett with a tired gesture toward the library.

By that time old Harris had served sweetbread and mushrooms, a queen of "company dishes." But Margaret's mind was straying toward her immediate program. She had promised Jimmy to meet him at the office that afternoon. She had never seen his intimate work, and if she was to become the wife of a newspaper editor it was well that she should inhale the odor of printer's ink. She had sometimes thought of that work for herself. Jimmy's quick judgment, his knowledge of men and affairs had always filled her with admiration . . . If she could only love him. . . . Father in heaven, if she could only learn . . .

"These mushrooms aren't wild—the kind that run around the country, barking to be caught. They're tame things raised in a cellar. I hate tame things." It was Flora Lee's undaunted chatter that ran merrily on.

"Ah, but aren't the North American mushrooms all raised so—in cellars?" inquired the Marquis without intent to offend.

"There you go again! Step forward, king, and pin the Royal Geographical tin badge on Bunny here. He thinks that North American mushrooms are grown in cellars."

"But these are delicious," said San Pilar, lifting another forkful.

"So is rubber. And these are just like rubber—you can tell by the taste just where rubber comes from."

"Where does it come from, honey?" asked Garnett.

"Oh, Daddy, don't you jump me too," she begged. "If I told him he'd say I was wrong. He's studied geography. By the way, do you know what he said yesterday? He saw a little nigger chewing gum and wanted to know if it was some sort of nervous disease."

"Our mushrooms may be tame," said Garnett, rising, "but I'm afraid sir, that you'll not think the same of our young ladies. And if you'll forgive me, I'll be going back to my office. I'm a little—er—crowded nowadays and can't always give myself the pleasure I should wish——"

"I have been honored, sir," said the Marquis with a deep bow. And as soon as Flora Lee's father was out of the room he resumed the mushroom discussion. Food always interested him.

"I don't say that I can't detect the flavor—or lack of flavor—of the cellar mushroom. But here in North America——"

"Where everything's sort of vulgar," supplied Flora Lee with a glint of last night's resentment in her eyes. Vulgarity was a dangerous topic, so San Pilar stepped gracefully aside.

"The North American girl is not raised in a cellar, I am sure. No lack of flavor there. Imagine a divine mushroom, grown in the Elysian Fields with a dash of paprika"

"We have the finest mushrooms in the world right here in this state," persisted Flora Lee.

"How can I doubt it?"

"That's your sweet Spanish way of calling me a liar. Peg, don't we grow the finest mushrooms?"

"You can find some mighty nice ones at this time of year," responded Margaret, a little bored with the theme.

"They grow as big as soup-plates all over the hills. Right after a rain, when the sun comes out——"

"Why don't you go look for some?" suggested the older sister.

"Oh, Peg!" Flora Lee brought her hands together an expression of absolute rapture on her face. "What a luscious idea."

"The rain's clearing off," Margaret continued, "and we used to find lots of mushrooms on the Fort—just above Dutch Hill?"

"You blessed inspired love!" Flora Lee leaped to her feet, came around the table and planted a kiss above her sister's eyebrow. "Bunny, you and I'll go hunting mushrooms. This morning when I got up I said to myself, what is it I feel like? I didn't know because I was so darned sleepy. But Peg's got it. There's an awful golf tournament at the Country club—it will be heavenly to cut that. We haven't anything else in the wide world to do, Bunny."

"Mushrooms on the slopes of Parnassus," he described it, unable to suppress a grin.

"That's not a bit like Dutch Hill, is it, Peg?"

"Dutch Hill's a sort of slum," explained Margaret. "A nice, clean slum."

"And we ought to hurry or the white trash will be up there with baskets and beat us to it," cried Flora Lee, afire with her new idea.

After dessert Margaret withdrew and left them to their coffee. They were still discussing mushrooms, and Margaret wondered if they had any less exotic common interest. An hour later when she came down stairs, dressed for the street, she heard their pleasant, disputative voices coming from the little sun-room back of the library. In spite of her protestations that mushrooms should be picked at once ahead of the invading white-trash with baskets, Flora Lee was taking her time. Indeed she was constitutionally unable to hurry about anything.

CHAPTER XLIII.

At eight minutes of four Admah Holtz paused at the corner of Inness Street and Prince's Avenue where the Kozy Kar automobile showrooms, recently established, had a Western Union clock in the window. In the shadow of his new brown coat he brought out the dollar watch, ordinarily sufficient and compared it with the larger dial inside. He was two minutes fast; and this discovery meant another readjustment in his line of march. Miss Flo Lee had invited him at four. She had said it distinctly over the telephone, and Candy Holtz had built his success thus far on a cornerstone of promptness.

No vainer than most unmarried men, he was yet unable to move away without another glance into the bright reflection of himself which the window cast toward the street. Never before had he cut so fine a figure, of that he was certain. But wasn't his suit o' clothes a little bright—sort of loud and niggery? Monty Fernback had recommended it as The Latest. "Tobacco brown" he called it and convinced his customer that the slanting pockets and flaring tails were exactly like those affected by the best dressed actors from New York. In the same breath Monty, as a fellow clubman, had weaned his customer away from his knob-toed shoes and argued his feet into something black and slippery like oilcloth. They were impressive, these new shoes, but they hurt across the instep. And because the new suit and the new shoes gave his hat a seedy look Admah had yielded to a round black derby which pressed on his skull like an iron crown and grew hot with exercise.

But in the window of the Kozy Kar showrooms he straightened up like an actor after the callboy's knock. A little awed before the picture of himself he reckoned that he'd look as good as the Spigotty Count or anybody else at Miss Flo Lee's teaparty....Or maybe the Spigotty Count wouldn't be there. Nobody but himself and Flo Lee. Devoutly he prayed that this would be so.

The Western Union clock said five minutes of four when he turned the corner and strolled magnificently toward the Peake house. By, measuring the steps, he calculated, he could be there on the dot; he had already toured the block a half dozen times and inspected every neighborly show window, trying to forget his smarting feet and to forgive the unexpected efficiency of the trolley-car that had got him there fifteen minutes too early.

The Peake house was two blocks from the Avenue, and when he had covered one of these Admah again consulted his watch and found that he had still three minutes on his hands. Ridden by all the hags that pursue the bashful man's imagination, he felt that mirthful eyes were upon him from every closed shutter in the block. He was glad that he hadn't let Monty cajole him into buying a cane. Nobody but visiting Easterners carried canes, and he himself had sneered more than once behind the backs of these outland dudes, swaggering along as tho two legs weren't good enough for a grown man to walk on....No, sir, not Monty or anybody else could wish a cane on Admah Holtz....

He had come a few yards down the block and was slackening his pace still more when an approaching figure reacted painfully upon his morbid state of mind. One of the Peake girls—the big one—had just come out of her yard and turned toward Prince's Avenue. Too shy to look directly at her, he had an impression of a straight, sensible suit, almost as brown as his own and of a slender, vital body that swayed slightly with her gait. Step by step she came nearer, every step confronting him like a question mark.

CHINESE DENTIST SLAIN

Graduate of Vanderbilt Dental Clinic Victim of New York Tong War.

NEW YORK, aJn. 8.—Death resulting from bloody tong war hatred that already had caused murder of two members of his family within a month, last night claimed Dr. Wah S. Chan, graduate of the Vanderbilt dental clinic, Columbia university.

Chan was found in his office, a Chinese seaman's stiletto thru his neck. Chin Hing and Chin Song, cousins of the victims, recently were slain in similar fashion.

Police believe Chin Jack Lem, another member of the family, was largely responsible for the tong war. He is alleged to have led the exodus of On Leongs to Cleveland after reported discovery of a shortage in tong accounts. It is believed these On Leongs became Hip Sings while in Cleveland.

A trial resulting from the tong war ended here today when a jury found Lee Hai, gunman, guilty of second degree murder in the death of Gong Cheng Foon, who was killed in his laundry Thanksgiving Lee Hai was sentenced to twenty years to life imprisonment.

facts about Child-birth

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering, pain and dread experienced during expectancy, as well as child-birth is entirely unnecessary.

An eminent physician, Dr. J. H. Holmes, expert in this science, first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend," which aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily, during the constant readjustment, month after month, right up to the climax of child-birth.

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. Three generations of expectant mothers have used it. "Pains disappeared in two days after using 'Mother's Friend,'" writes a user. "I owe my life to 'Mother's Friend,'" declared another. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did, start today and experience the wonderful comfort it will give you.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease they call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, penetrating prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, arch hip shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale at 60 cents a tube is immense

All druggists have a big supply of it and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Alwasy remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint misery gets out—quick.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Grain futures finished irregular on the board of trade today.

During the day there were many up and down movements in wheat. News was conflicting. On the extreme dip the markt encountered local buying. Corn closed fractionally higher. Cash business improved and encouraged leading locals to buy in the futures.

Spot oats sagged under profit selling while deferred delieveries, gathering strength from corn, finished with a fractional gain.

Provisions were dull and closed lower.

Grain Market Opinions.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: We advise extreme caution on the buying side of wheat. Cash corn is in a weak position.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: Until the cash demand improves, we believe it will be difficult to maintain advances.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: Wheat is a purchase on all weak spots.

Stein Alstrin: Frequent profit taking keeps the market in good technical condition.

Clement Curtis & Co.: Export news is without special significance.

Thomson McKinnon: Recessions in wheat offer buying opportunities. Coarse grains are not likely to show permanent strength until the cash situation is rectified.

Buenos Aires close: Wheat unchanged. Corn unchanged to 1-2 higher. Oats unchanged. Flax unchanged to 1-2 higher; weather fine.

Broomhall's Cable: Liverpool: United Kingdom—Shippers offering Manitobas and American wheats firm; reflecting strength in Chicago and Winnipeg. Demand for wheat not especially keen, millers supplies appear ample for time being. Corn—Moderate demand. Continental injury better.

Chicago Tribune: Cash premium advances in wheat makes bulls more confident of their position. The disposition is to buy on all good breaks. Julius Barnes in a summary of the world's wheat situation says there is a close adjustment of supplies to requirements. Selling of July wheat and buying of May was on a liberal scale. There was also considerable buying of September and selling of July. One of the largest local shorts was credited with buying all grains yesterday. There was nothing to account for the strength in corn and oats. Cash corn was weak and Argentine crop news favorable. Oats stocks are 61,000,000 bushels in excess of last year. Some traders reinstated lines of lard.

Foreigners refused to follow the advance in futures and export sales of wheat at the seaboard were estimated at 200,000 bushels. Kansas City failed to confirm the reports of Tuesday that around 1,000,000 bushels had been sold for export from that market and said only limited lots had been disposed of to exporters altho mills had taken considerable grain. Rye sales were 250,000 bushels.

Herald and Examiner: Offerings of May wheat at 180 yesterday were enormous. Bullish developments in the domestic cash situation were back of the buying.

Lamson: A leading commission house says: "Claims of export business recently have not been substantiated and further that foreigners sold wheat futures here yesterday."

Flifton says: "The basic conditions in lard have not changed, because of the recent advance."—Lamson.

Omaha Livestock.

OMAHA, Jan. 8.—Cattle: receipts 6,500. The cattle market opened out very dull Thursday with packers bidding 15@25c lower and order buyers doing little or nothing. Quality of the cattle was rather plain and with the demand confined practically to local packers there was little of any consequence selling around $10.00 or above. Cows and heifers were also somewhat easier and most of the advance of the early part of the week has been lost. Stockers and feeders continue in vigorous demand at prices fully a half dollar higher than last week.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Today's trading found the characteristics of a great bull swing restored to the general list.

Thruout the session the action of the leading stocks unmistakeably demonstrated that the line of least resistance was still on the side of rising prices for the simple reason that the country's most influential financial interests were not only retaining their holdings, but were taking advantage of price recessions to add to their line.

No more conclusive proof of the improvement in the economic conditions could be required than the fact that steel operations had expanded 20 per cent in the brief time since election.

Stock Market Opinions.

Post & Flagg: We are likely to have more of trading conditions for the moment.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: We continue optimistic.

Wollman & Co.: The oil stocks act well.

Thomson McKinnon: Sound industrial conditions and financial conditions won't prevent a market correction when it is necessary.

Chicago Tribune: "According to advices from Paris, the United States is preparing to open the Italian debt question. Italy finds its debt a load and some students believe Italy and its finances will be the pivot upon which will turn the entire adjustment of the international war debt on German reparations."

CHICAGO: It is understood Wrigley net earnings for 1924 will approximate $5.00 a share on the common stock.

Price average: 20 industrials 121.12, up .05; 20 rails 100.35, up .08; 40 bonds 90.69, off .05.

Bank of England rate unchanged.

U. S. Rubber directors meet for dividend action at 3:30 p. m. today.

Heavy melting steel advanced 50 cents a ton at Youngstown to $22.50 with some dealers quoting as high as 24.50.

Domestic Crude production increased 1200 barrels daily in week ended January 6th averaging 1,965,000 barrels.

Cluett-Peabody regular quarterly dividend $1.25.

Steel corporation expected to increase operations to 89% from 85% next week.

December steel ingot output in United States 3,551,825 tons against 3,107,116 in November and 2,863,266 in December, 1923.

Amer Tel and Tel Co sells $125,000,000 35-year 5% debentures to syndicate which offers them at 95 to yield 5.03%.

Two more blast furnaces will resume in eastern district shortly.—Lamson.

Mr. Bell Claims It's Hats and Mr. Sheffield Says It's Shoes

Ex County Assessor Sheffield and Ex-County Assessor and County Assessor-Elect Bell can't agree. Mr. Bell insists that they've changed hats and Mr. Sheffield counters with the claim that they didn't change hats but changed shoes—but anyhow they've changed jobs again.

J. A. Sheffield, retiring county assessor and ingoing deputy assessor, was elected to office twelve years ago. Eight years ago O. C. Bell was chosen chief of the office and Mr. Sheffield served for four yeasr as deputy.

Four years ago Mr. Sheffield was again elevated to the chief place among assessors and Mr Bell served him faithfully as deputy assessor. In the last election Mr. Bell was unanimously elected to the office and Mr. Sheffield retires to second place again. He is now beginning to lay plans for his campaign in 1928 so that he may again be chief.

To celebrate his going into office Mr. Bell ordered some new linoleum or rather cork carpet for the outer office and passed around the cigars. Mr. Sheffield says that Mr. Bell's hat won't fit him and Mr. Bell maintains that Mr. Sheffield's shoes won't fit him, but anyhow they aren't going to fight about it.

Traveling in America.

Rebecca West in The New Republic: I spent but four months of the seven that I was in America in traveling, and I regret it, for I have never been in any country where the mere act of journeying from place to place was more seductive. Willingly could I, who have always imagined that I loathed traveling by land, have done nothing but wander on from town to town up and down the length and breadth of the United States. This is partly due to the genius of the place, but it is also due to the extreme comfort of the American trains. It is true that they are all of them equipped with instruments of torture in the form of an apparatus known as the airbrake, which works in such a way that every time the train starts there is a preliminary jar so severe that it feels as if not only every carriage but every individual had been struck a heavy blow with a club. The explanation is, I fancy, that the average American is so full of nervous energy that he can suffer this violent shock without pain that we depleted and oversensitive creatures feel; but it may be that some slight measure of discomfort has to be inserted into the railway system to deter people from spending their entire lives on the train. I found myself sometimes regretting that I need ever step out of the Pullman car save to have a bath.

CHEST BUDGETS TO SUFFER SOME CUT

Not Quite Ninety Thousand Available for Social Agencies Who Asked $108,000 for 1925.

The officers were re-elected, except Dr. Bailey, who is succeeded by O. J. Fee as vice president. Fred Putney becomes secretary in the place of Mr. Fee. Dr. Bailey becomes a director.

The community chest books show a grand total of $106,962 available for this year—on paper—it was reported at the annual meeting Thursday afternoon, but due to varibus shrinkages the amount of money actually to be spent will probably total a little under $90,000. These figures an dothers were in a summary presented by President W. E. Hardy, who said he had figured them rather pessimistically, in order to be on the safe side. Conceding $5,000 to the more optimistic members of the chest, Mr. Hardy estimated that a 20 per cent reduction of the budgets, which totalled $108,000. would be all that was necessary.

Frde W. Putney, chairman of the 1925 campaign still thinks the $8,000 deficit can be collected by intensive work, as there were 794 contributors in the two previous years who did not make pledges this time.

There is also available the books show, $6,666 from the 1923 subscriptions, not yet collected, and $16,296 from the 1924 subscriptions which will also probably show a shrinkage, usually figured at about 6 per cent.

Expenses of the community chest will be greater this year, the campaign costing about $4,000 and cost of operating about $3,500. Louis W. Horne has been employed as full time secretary, that office being necessitated, Mr. Hardy said, by the amount of work involved in the monthly disbursements, in addition to putting on campaigns and keeping publicity going.

A nominating committee was named in the course of the meeting, to present names of successors to the present officers, who are: Presidnet, W. E. Hardy; vice presidents, J. J. Ledwith and Dr. B. F. Bailey; secretary, O. J. Fee; treasurer, C. C. Carlsen.

·Men and Things·

May there not be some connection between the growth of popular education and the growth of disregard of law that we have not yet clearly traced out? As we remember some of the early philosophers and essayists there were some who bore down strongly upon the proposition that men were better off if they did not seek to know so much, and that tranquility of soul and body being the most desired thing the less one knew beyond certain limits the better off he was. Montaigne pointed out two significant things—one is taht the first commandment of God is obedience, which means substituting His will for ours. The other is that the supreme temptation was that of the devil who advertised as the chief virtue of the apple that its eating brought knowledge.

The philosophers, social and otherwise, indulge in a lot of jargon to the effect that we are a world surrounded by a large body of undiscovered truth. The scientists and the other research workers are depicted as men engaged in picking off a bit of this every now and then and adding it to our store. Insofar as the physical world is concerned, this is not altogether an unfaithful picture, but these are questions of but academic interest to persons. The mandate that by the sweat of our brows should we earn our bread has made it necessary for us to know economic truths, and the religious impulse of man has bid him learn spiritual truths. So far as these two fields of philosophy are concerned we have good authority for the statement taht nothing really new has been presented in them in years.

The government ought to conduct a personal health service for the purpose of reducing the death rate among governors and members of congress. Now that sentimentalistic Wyoming and romantic Texas have elected women governors purely on the ground of what happened to their husbands, the widow of a late California congressman is seeking his place on the same ground. This may be just about as logical a reason as those which are behind the election of a lot of men to office, but it has the demerit of being very attenuated and as adding one more to the foolish list. We should at least pretend that merit is the sole basis upon which we choose those who are to govern us.

Edward Filene, one of the country's big merchants, says that if the railroad is to save itself from the competition of the bus and truck operating upon the publicly-maintained highways of the country it must let the idea of profits sink into the background and push service to the front. We have a pretty fair knowledge of the difficulties of the railroads, and we think that impossible advice. It would be good advice if railroads were on the same level and as free from restriction as is ordinary business.

The most poignant tragedy life holds is the fading out of existence of a lad on the threshold of manhood or of a young man who has just firmly planted his foot upon the ladder of an honorable and useful career. It seems both to prove and to disprove the existence of a supreme control. Why should a creator intent upon lifting up the race he has sponsored let the most useful or promising members of it crumble into dust and permit all the derelicts and failures to encumber his earth? On the other hand this is exactly the contrary course pursued by natural law, which is eternally seeking the survival of the fittest, thus pointing to a divine intervention, which must also mean a divine plan and a divine kindness.

Seventy years has long been the allotted span of life. Only a few weather the storms of a larger number of years. The curious thing about it is that those of middle age are always looking forward to a period of leisure when they may find time to do the things they wish so much to do, while those who have passed seventy, insofar as one is able to judge without close communion with many, mostly enact the role of sitting with folded arms awaiting the touch of a summoning hand. Is life really a series of frustrations? Sometimes we think so.

Merchants emphasize service because experience has shown that it produces profits, but the trouble with railroading is that we do not hold up profits as an inducement to good service. The two would be comparable if we did not restrict profits in the one case and not in the other. Railroad managers must look first from the dividend point of view because the dividend is the big vital thing in its existence. If it is not earned each year, approximately, it cannot secure the necessary financing. If profits were unrestricted in the railroad business there would be an inducement to adopting policies that sacrificed present gain for future reward.

BUDGET SYSTEM ADVISED FOR FURNISHING A HOME

Best Method Is to Accumulate Good Things Gradually.

By MARIAN MOORE

There is scarcely a word in the whole category that pertains to home furnishings that has a more potent meaning than the word budget. When people who must maintain a home on a moderate income rush around to get their homes completed within a short space of time ,they usually have a case of "Furnish in haste, and repent at leisure," because there is no money left to repair the mistakes.

If you don't want grief to follow in the wake of the furnishing proposition, the thing to do is to budget—thoughtfully, wisely, carefully balancing what you need with your present income and what it will probably be in the future. And the best budget is to plan to buy one good piece of furniture every month or every two or three months, or at the most feasible time you decide on, and to buy one smaller piece at certain stated intervals. This plan not only gives you the wherewithal to obtain the things, but it gives you plenty of time to look around, as "looking around" is never more important than in choosing furnishings. Moreover, you have time to consider what you are getting and to consult with others, so that your home will become an harmonious whole, lovingly built bit by bit, and not thrown together with things which were never meant to be used together.

Tasteful Furnishing.

This living room group is a product of the budget method in furnishing, and because the pieces were bought one at a time, the housewife was able to select things a little more luxurious and lovely.
